LEWIS UPHELD IN HIS REMOVAL OF HOWAT

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 14.—John Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers of America, was upheld in his action in removing Alexander Howat of Kansas as president of District No. 11, when Judge Samuel A. The order sought would have barred Lewis from interfering in any way in district No. 11.

Mayor Says There Are Too Many Stores Open Here On Sunday

"If I had the power I would close everything up tight on Sunday, in the city, with the exception of drug stores and any other business that was vitally necessary to the public welfare and make the day one of rest and worship and rest," declared Mayor George H. Brown today.

The mayor went to the police station this morning for the purpose of talking over the Sunday situation with Clerk Flaherty of the license commission, but said that he was unable to locate him during the brief stay he made in the building. Mayor Brown said that he went there with the thought in mind to see if some steps could be taken toward a stricter type of regulations governing stores and shops now allowed to keep open on Sunday.

THIS IS NEW YEAR'S DAY IN THE DISTRICT COURT IN GREEK COLONY

Greetings are in order today in the local Greek district, for today is New Year's for the Greek Orthodox, who are still being guided by the Julian calendar. It is believed, however, that the Julian calendar will be discarded before the close of the year 1922, for the Holy Synod of the Greek Orthodox church is planning to hold a special convocation at the close of the Greek-Turkish war and to follow the remainder of the Christian world by adopting the Gregorian calendar.

The day is indeed one of great rejoicing, but it is one of the most important holidays on the calendar and one which gives the faithful an opportunity to forget their past grievances with their neighbors. Everybody rejoices.

Work on the school is being pushed forward.

REMOVAL OF SNOW COST CITY $48,250 LAST YEAR

The removal of snow last year, cost the city about $48,250 and it is expected that this amount will be exceeded this winter, with the amount that has already fallen and the projections for much more before the season begins to change. The 125 emergency men taken on Thursday will be laid off next Wednesday noon, that being the limit of time allowed by the civil service for such emergency employment. If the situation requires, their places will be filled by others.

DRACUT MAN BOUGHT "HOUDINI" CALF

Somebody in Lowell is in one good healthy-looking calf at the present time, and Kramer & Keller of Dracut are out just that much. Yesterday afternoon Samuel Kramer of the firm drove his auto to a place on Wood st. and bought a calf which he intended to take to his slaughter house.

The horse was loaded into a crate, perhaps the calf had a premonition of what was going to happen. Anyway, the fact remains that when a person in the vicinity of the depot called Mr. Kramer's attention to the fact the door of the crate was opened, an examination found the calf was missing.

Upon inquiries Mr. Kramer has been unable to locate the animal. He doesn't know just when the escape was effected. Laboring under the supposition that the calf may have been sort of a homing-pigeon, he returned to the place where he purchased it.

On the way he kept his ears open for a few "tosses" or "mas" but nothing of the sort did he hear. The case was reported to the police and also to the Humane society but neither of these departments has been able to throw any light on the mystery.

Brakeman Wolensky Has Narrow Escape in "Battle of the Buggies" in the New Haven Yards

CABOOSE IN WHICH WOLENSKY WAS SLEEPING

Freight Train Caboose in Bad Jam Early This Morning—Misplaced Switch Responsible for Freight Wreck—Car of Cotton and Oil Tankers in Mixup

Soundly sleeping on a comfortable warm bunk in "buggy" No. 600,098, Brakeman Bill Wolensky, dreaming of other days and places, got one of his biggest thrills this morning about 3:55 o'clock, when his temporary sleeping car of wood construction but good, stout steel underpinning, was suddenly jammed and pushed off the rails down in the New Haven yards in South Lowell.

Bill's sleep disturber was none other than "buggy" No. 602,211, a caboose of the all-wood variety that has made its last little run through the local freight cars that also figured in the wreck that sprawled all over three tracks and cut off all freight transfer work in that immediate territory until early this afternoon.

The damage to the freight cars and freight cars will amount to several thousand dollars. One caboose, No. 602,214, was so badly smashed that it will have to be carted away as kindling wood for distribution among the shanties along the line where the gate-tenders hang out. The other "buggy" is of steel construction underneath, and escaped demolition, although badly damaged. It was a case of two heavy tank cars loaded with Texas fuel oil against two "buggies" with the "buggies" in the middle and getting the crusher applied with considerable force.

Agent Patrick J. Shea of the New Haven yards was called out early, and

BILL WOLENSKY

Wolensky landed on his head in one corner of the car just as the other end caved in and a shower of splinters spread over the brakeman's outworn boulder. It was a rude awakening, but trainmen say he was lucky to get out of it as well as he did. A misplaced switch choked off a nice little freight car shooting exhibition on the part of a busy engineer in the N.Y.N.H.&H. railroad yards. As a result, a hurry-up call had to be sent for the Taunton wrecking crew to untangle two badly damaged "buggies" and fix up the ends of a couple of

HUMANE SOCIETY MAKES ANNUAL REPORT

The annual report of the Lowell Humane Society has been compiled by Agent C. F. Richardson and contains an interesting resume of the work done by this organization during the 1921 year. The report shows the society was kept pretty busy during the 12 months which ended on Dec. 31, and while not much more work was done in these 12 months than in the previous 12, the agent and his assistants were kept out on the road all of the time. It was impossible to handle any more cases than were disposed of.

Human and animal cases of every description passed through the society's hands. There was a noticeable decrease in the number of horse cases handled. Agent Richardson attributes this to the fact that motor vehicles are fast taking the place of horses and doing their work.

One small item of expense, of the many charged to the society, is that of the tax box used for extermination of animals. It was estimated that the tax averaged $10 a month. The society furnishes its services free in these cases, but would be glad to have all who can afford it, contribute to the cost of the tax.

The society wishes to thank all who have helped it along during the past year, especially the children's home, St. Peter's orphanage, Ayer home, Lowell Guild, Social Service League and the Lowell police.

Harry Baker, an ex-service man, has assisted Agent Richardson in the past, having had charge of the animal department. The report:

Vote on Treaty Unanimous

(Associated Press)—The Anglo-Irish treaty creating the Irish Free State, was unanimously ratified today by the South Ireland parliament.

Eamon de Valera and his supporters, who opposed the treaty in the Dail Eireann were absent.

A provisional government was constituted, comprising Michael Collins, William Cosgrave, Eamon J. Duggan, P. J. Hogan, Finian Lynch, Joseph McGrath, Prof. John MacNeill, and Kevin O'Higgins.

The parliament met under clauses 17 and 18 of the Anglo-Irish treaty, which made the members of the southern Irish parliament elected under the government of Ireland act of 1920 the body which should ratify the treaty and take measures for constituting a provisional government.

The meeting was held in the oak room of the Mansion House. The entire list of 128 members, including the four unionists elected for Trinity college, had been summoned, but only those who favored the treaty attended.

The agenda contained a resolution calling for ratification of the treaty and further resolutions appointing eight ministers to comprise the provisional governing body. The list, which was duly ratified by the meeting is identical with the list of the ministers of the Dail Eireann, with the addition of Professor John MacNeill, speaker of the Dail, and Finian Lynch, who was one of the secretaries of the London delegation.

The list of ministers does not include Arthur Griffith, president of the Dail and George Gavan Duffy, the Dail's minister of foreign affairs, presumably because foreign affairs, although they will be within the competence of the free state when constituted, will not be formally handled by the provisional transitional government.

Plan General Election
The brief meeting of the southern parliament members was presided over by William Devlin of Cork City. The chairman announced that when the transition period was completed, the Dail Eireann would decree a general election, enabling the people to pronounce a final vote of confidence and elect representatives to the parliament of the nation.

The roll call established the fact that not one member of Mr. de Valera's party was present. The four "Irish" college members all attended. Pierce Healey of Kerry originally moved the resolution approving the treaty, with Joseph McBride of Mayo, brother of Major John McBride, who was executed after the Easter week uprising in 1916, seconding the motion.

Griffith Outlines Policy
The resolution proposing the election of the ministers was passed without dissent. Arthur Griffith, president of the Dail Eireann, addressing the meeting said he thought it desirable to make definite what the position was of the provisional government. "The Dail Eireann," he explained, "would remain in existence until the treaty's terms were carried out, when general elections would be called. The provisional government, he said, would need and deserve the support of every good Irishman. Its task would be heavy, and it would have many difficulties through the outlet, but it would carry through, he said.

To Guarantee Fair Play
Mr. Griffith said he was sure the provisional government would make no distinction between Irishmen. Every guarantee would be given for fair play all around. They were starting a new era on this occasion, he said, and desired that the old differences be banished forever. New differences must arise in every community, but they would arise as differences, he said.

LUNENBURG, N. S., Jan. 14.—The schooner J. Duffy, participant in the recent Nova Scotia fishing schooner races, was beached today, filled with water after she had struck a bar at the mouth of La Have river. The lowest tide in several years was responsible for the mishap, the skipper said.

Resignations of Science Trustees Accepted

BOSTON, Jan. 14.—The supreme court today issued an interlocutory decree accepting the resignations of Herbert W. Eustace and Paul A. Harvey as trustees of the Christian Science Publishing Society. The decree was made effective on Nov. 25, 1921, the date on which the trustees placed their resignations in the hands of the court. It leaves the society without any trustee, the court having recently upheld the Mother Church directors' removal of Lamont Rowlands.

Lost Petition of Anti-Prohibitionists

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 14.—Loss by United States Senator Frelinghuysen of a petition of 15,000 anti-prohibitionists calling on New Jersey's senators and representatives to work for modification of the Volstead enforcement act, drew a charge from William R. Stewart, president of the Anti-Dry League of New Jersey today that the senator either had "dishonestly suppressed" the petition or was guilty of such carelessness as rendered him "unworthy to be a member of the United States senate." The petition demanded modification of the Volstead act so as to permit the sale of light wines and beer.

Entire Armenian Population to Leave

GENEVA, Jan. 14.—(By the Associated Press)—Paul Hymen, president of the council of the League of Nations, presented to the council today a telegram which Cardinal Mercier, primate of Belgium, had received from the Protestant community and the Armenian Catholic patriarchate of Constantinople, stating that the entire Armenian population had decided to evacuate the country. The telegram urgently appealed for vessels to transport 120,000 persons.

References between Irishmen belonging to one state, Mr. Griffith added it would be the business of the provisional government to see that all the Irish prisoners, arrested and incarcerated in connection with the recent hostilities, were restored to liberty. Prof. Griffith of Trinity college, said that as representative of men who had held different opinions in the past from those of the present, he recognized Mr. Griffith's statement in the "Irish" in which it was offered and would do his best to make the measures successful. The members signed the roll and the meeting was concluded.

Brakeman Has Narrow Escape in Train Wreck

cars piled with oil in between, the momentum was some momentum when the "huggers" left the combination and tried to bounce the standing caboose off the rails. The crash woke up the neighborhood.

The damage included a badly spoiled end of a freight car loaded with cotton for Lowell mills. The tank car listed as "S.T.C.N. 1083" had one end tipped where the running board is supposed to be. Another, "S.L. & S. 4372," was also damaged. The car of "Walton" was in the wreck and was smashed in after being tossed from the rails, crumbling when the impact came like a paper box.

The little mishap occurred within a short distance of the Lincoln street bridge and just off the Maple street freight yard tracks. "You can't lay them to Friday the 13th, anyhow," said Wolensky to Walsh, when he crawled out of the wrecked caboose this morning. He didn't get a scratch, but the jounce when the flying "huggers" hit his bed chamber is on the won't-happen-again list for Bill.

Murderously Assaulted

led when the alleged assailant made the brothers the targets of his attack. So sudden did the villain spring from behind and stab the two men that it was impossible for either to offer resistance or force a struggle. Yacobi, as he saw the assailant brandish a dagger, ran away, but according to his story is the police stated he was able to identify the man with the weapon. Country, as he, Yacobi, fleeing, turned around several times to see if he was being pursued. The Naim boys on the ground unconscious and bleeding profusely the alleged attacker threw the dagger to the side of a pathway and ran away.

The wounded men were removed to the hospital in the ambulance. Immediately called, the police secured the district for the man suspected of having committed the deed but as yet have failed to uncover his hiding place. The dagger used by the assailant was recovered shortly after by patrolman Meigs. Information received by the police from the two men at the hospital revealed the fact that Country, the alleged assailant, was known to them, the three having worked together some years ago. However, there never were any differences between them, they said, and knew of no reason warranting the attack.

Heaven Country, the police made known today, is widely known in this city and in Lawrence, where he recently made his residence under the name of Arthur George. The following description is hereby obtained by the authorities has been furnished to the police force of nearly every town and village all the patrolmen on duty in Lowell: Age, 35 years, weight, 135 pounds, height, 5 feet, 4 inches, yellow complexion, curly hair, and wore a blue suit with no overcoat.

Appoints New Liquor Squad

by Lieut. George H. Palmer, each squad to work in co-operation with the other. Federal Field Agent Harold D. Wilson has been invited to come to Lowell for the purpose of a conference with the mayor and police. Mr. MacBryne said, on being asked to call for this meeting to be held next Thursday afternoon.

"I fully appreciate the excellent work being accomplished by the present local liquor squad in charge of Sergeant Wilson," said the acting superintendent, "and I trust that the new squad will not succeed the old in any way. It simply will work along slightly different lines, but always in close touch with Wilson's men."

The decision to invite Field Agent Wilson to come to the city has been contemplated for some time and a week ago Mayor Brown announced that he had taken important steps toward a full enforcement of the prohibition laws, without stating the exact nature of the step taken.

Evidently a letter was written to Mr. Wilson, for yesterday afternoon the following reply was received:

Jan. 11, 1922.
Hon. George H. Brown, Mayor of Lowell, City Hall, Lowell, Mass.
Dear Mr. Brown:—Your favor of the 8th relative to conditions in Lowell has been received and my attention has been given every detail of it. I think I will be possible for me to come on either Thursday or Friday of this week and if you will phone me at the office stating when such a conference would be convenient for you, we can arrange for a satisfactory time.

It is a pleasure to find a mayor so willing to go to the mat in this business. Very truly yours,
HAROLD D. WILSON.

SLIGHT INCREASE IN DEATH RATE

The city's death rate showed a slight increase this week over the two previous weeks. Deaths reported to the board of health this week number 25, compared with 24 last week and 26 the week previous.

There were 12 deaths this week under five years, and nine under one year. As is usual at this time of year, deaths caused by pneumonia showed an increase, there being seven reported. Ten cases of diphtheria were reported to the board.

FIRST STREET EXTENSION

The state board of public works is very anxious to take up the matter of the new boulevard extension in First street with the board of public works at the next possible moment. It is planned to begin this work early in the spring with an idea of completion by late fall. City Engineer Kearney will communicate with the state board at once and a conference between the two boards will be arranged as soon as convenient.

LINEN SHOWER AT ST. JOHN'S HOSPITAL

The ladies of Charity held their annual linen shower at St. John's hospital this afternoon, and it proved one of the most successful affairs in the history of the organization. The donations were as generous as could be expected by the most optimistic, and the cake and candy table enjoyed

WESTERN COLLEGES LEAD

Have Largest Number of Students According to Respective Populations

CHICAGO, Jan. 14.—Oregon, Iowa and Utah have the largest number of students in colleges, according to their prospective populations and Tennessee has the lowest proportion, with Arkansas and New Mexico closely following Tennessee, Dr. George F. Zook of the United States bureau of education told the Association of American colleges here today. Dr. Zook stated that he obtained this information from statistics compiled for the last full college year of 1920-1921.

"The statistics also reveal that the western states of California, Oregon and Utah take care of a larger proportion of their students in their own colleges and universities than any other states," continued Dr. Zook. "New Jersey brings up the rear with only 18 per cent. of her students in New Jersey institutions, and Connecticut follows with 35.6 per cent."

Upon the other hand, the eastern states of New Hampshire, Connecticut, Maryland, New Jersey and Massachusetts contain the institutions that draw most powerfully from other states. Indeed the higher institutions in these states are training a larger number of non-residents than they are of citizens of their respective states."

Dr. Zook also announced that the attendance at universities, colleges, and professional schools last year reached 460,000, which is a gain of 36 per cent. over the attendance in the year of 1917-18.

Accurate figures of foreign students in American colleges and universities were also supplied by Dr. Zook, the total being 6900. China leads with 1443 students, and Canada is second with 1294. Other countries are as follows: Japan, 525; South America countries, 583; Russia, 250; India 236.

Water, Heat and Light From Single Well

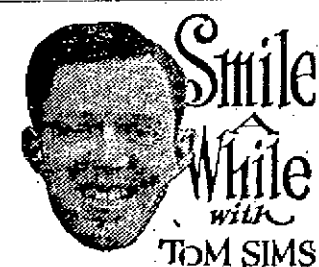

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 14.—Water, heat and light from a single well less than 250 feet deep, has made John Schaeffer, an Allegheny county farmer, envied by his neighbors. When Schaeffer hired drillers to sink the well, he was after water. The workmen tapped a considerable pocket of gas and a gas pipe was run down beside the water pipe. The gas has continued to flow steadily.

Schooner Abandoned at Sea

BOSTON, Jan. 14.—The schooner James M. W. Hall on a voyage from Charleston, S. C., for New York, was abandoned at sea in a water-logged condition at midnight, according to radio messages received here today. The messages came from the steamer West Canon, which reported that she had taken off the schooner's crew. The West Canon is bound for New York from Manila and Asiatic port. The James M. W. Hall a vessel of 500 tons, was built at Phippsburg, Me., and was owned at this port. She was under command of Captain B. M. Cole.

Declares Columbus Born in Portugal

LISBON, Jan. 14.—(By the Associated Press)—Christopher Columbus, discoverer of America, was born in Portugal, the Portuguese Academy of Sciences was told yesterday by Patrocinio Ribeiro, a member. It has been an historically accepted fact that Columbus was born in Genoa, Italy. The statement of Senhor Ribeiro is especially interesting as coming on the heels of an announcement by the Rt. Rev. Mgr. Irey Solo upon his arrival in New York recently, that Columbus was a Jew. The prelate said that this was proved by documents discovered at the home of ancestors of Columbus in Spain. He said Columbus hid the fact that he was a Jew because of the deportation of people of that race from Spain by Ferdinand and Isabella.

NORMAL SCHOOL LITERARY CLUB

Students at the State Normal School on Broadway have organized a literary club recently, with the following officers: President, Miss Estelle Coffey; Lowell, vice president, Miss Anna O'Brien; Lawrence, secretary and treasurer, Martha Gallagher; Lowell. The students anticipate the early issuance of the annual catalogue which shows an enrollment of nearly 200 on the student list. The catalogue is now being printed.

An address by Miss Helen Hogan, of the oral English department, was delivered yesterday before the students of the Reading high school. Miss Hogan's topic was "The Advantages of a Normal School Education." Mr. Frank W. Wright, director of the Normal school, division of the state department of education, was a visitor at the school a short time ago. He witnessed a demonstration in "senior 1" on various phases of the project method, by students who, under the direction of Miss Emma Ramsay, have done some work in practice teaching.

is only a symptom of trouble somewhere in your system. If your headache comes from your eyes, consult an oculist at once; but if you have a headache with furred tongue, nausea, loss of appetite and constipation, it usually comes from disordered digestion or torpid liver and one or two doses of "L.F." Atwood's Medicine will give speedy relief by carrying off impurities and restoring the clogged digestive organs to their normal activity. In using this old reliable remedy you take no chance. It has a record of more than sixty years as an safe headache remedy.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS PLANS "STAG" PARTY

The mid-winter "stag" party of Bishop Delany assembly, Fourth Degree, Knights of Columbus, on Tuesday evening next promises to be a pronounced success. If the reports read at the meeting of the committee on arrangements last evening can be taken as a criterion, these stag parties are quite a big noise with the assembly card and the initial event held in November was such a success that there was an insistent demand for another of the same variety. The record set by St. Knight Thomas J. O'Donnell and his committee in the first affair will be hard to surpass, but it appears to be the consensus of opinion that the November affair will have to take second place if all the plans of the new committee mature.

There were most encouraging reports relative to the various happy features of the event, and there appeared to be strong opinion that the assembly card returned indicated the biggest crowd ever. The committee on menu reported an excellent supper on the table, and the committee on entertainment promised an entertainment of rare excellence, diversified and satisfying in every particular. Supper will be served at 8.30, with St. Knight Edward P. Slattery, Jr., as master of ceremonies and general director. The committee in charge consists of St. Knights William H. Gallagher, P.M., Dr. R. J. Gendreau, Arthur J. O'Neill, Joseph A. Desrosiers, Joseph A. Handley, Daniel J. Powers, Martha E. Clough, Michael Keefe, Geo. R. Delany, Thomas J. Tolin, J. Eugene Mullin and Edward P. Slattery, Jr.

The committee in charge of the dinner and dance of the assembly reports plans going along quite acceptably, and will discuss further arrangements Monday evening.

Adventures of the Twins

A QUARTER

"NOW TELL ME WHAT THE TROUBLE IS," SAID THE FAIRY QUEEN.

"Now tell me what the trouble is," said the Fairy Queen to the two battered looking kites. "I would be happy if it wasn't for this fellow," said the first kite. "He knows I am the most important, but he won't say so." "Why?" "I've been written about in all the history books down on the earth and the children study about me." "I'm the kite that carried the cord that pulled the rope that drew the cable that started the bridge." "Oh goodness!" cried the second kite, "I've heard of a million times!" Then he turned to the Fairy Queen. "As for me, your majesty, I am Benjamin Franklin's kite," he said. "I went up into the clouds during a storm and discovered electricity." And he held himself so straight that he nearly fell over backwards. The Fairy Queen wondered how the Fairy Queen was going to decide the question. But thinking said to wait. (To Be Continued.) New Style for Men's Clothing

THE AFFAIRS OF JANE

GAMBLERS ARRAIGNED IN DISTRICT COURT

Judge Enright in district court today imposed a fine of $20 on Joseph Duarte, said by the police to be the promoter of a gambling resort at 31 South Street, and of $5 each on six other men who were said to have been playing cards with Duarte in his premises last night. All said, the court was charged with the task of finding the last six giving their names as Francis Joachime, Manuel Costa, John Ponte, Frank Loures, Tony Costa and Joaquina Ferreira. Following the receipt of a complaint at headquarters last night a squad of police composed of Sgt. Winn and Patrolmen Conroy and Moore, of the liquor and vice squads, were dispatched to the address where the gambling activities were alleged to have been going on with instructions to raid the premises.

The seven men were surprised by the police as they were sitting around tables playing cards. They were placed under arrest while a search of the cellar of the house followed owing to complaints. Sgt. Winn stated, received by him that considerable drunkenness had been evident at that house. The officers testified in court today that they found no liquor although there were many empty jugs and bottles in the basement. The police told the court that these premises had been raided for the same purpose about a month ago when about a dozen men were arrested for alleged card gambling and later convicted in court. The court recalled with the police that Duarte, who the authorities stated was the promoter of the gambling activities, when surprised by the raiding party on that occasion sneaked to a bed room and jumped into a bed, clothes and all, and pretended to be sick, resisting arrest. The members of the liquor and vice squads testified he was the same person and Duarte, when asked by the judge admitted the same story.

SPECIAL COURSE IN NATURALIZATION

Acting under a special request of a group of French-speaking women of this city the naturalization committee will open a special course of naturalization for the members of the fair sex. For some time past this committee has been conducting courses for the men folk with very satisfactory results and it is believed that similar courses for women would be of great value.

Women, married or single, who are planning to become citizens of this country and who would be interested in such a project are invited to attend a meeting, which will be held in the college hall in Merrimack street tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Members of the committee will be in attendance to explain the workings of the course they have in mind for the women, and it is hoped there will be a large attendance.

TREES WERE BADLY BRUISED BY STORM

Superintendent of Parks John W. Kernan has notified the board of park commissioners that the amount of work required to place the city trees in a proper and safe condition, as a result of the disastrous storm of November 25 of last year, will cost approximately $30,000.

At the direction of his board, Supt. Kernan has spent the greater part of the last month in making a survey of the street trees and the shade trees in city parks, and from his observations, Kernan apparently has sustained most damage. Maples, oaks and alders suffered only a little less than the elms, but the evergreens, with the exception of the pines, were not so badly hit by the ravages of the storm.

The superintendent's itemized report shows that 100 tree butts need to be removed at a cost of $3500. Eighty trees, mutilated beyond repair, must be removed at a cost of $3500, while 1200 trees in need of surgery will necessitate an expenditure of $18,000.

Work to be done in parks will cost $4700 more, the superintendent declares, divided as follows: Fort Hill, $1000; Shedd park, $1000; South common, $500; North common, $500; Vernon avenue, $500; and Dunbar avenue, $500. Tyler park, $200; Delvidere park, $200; Mt. Vernon park, $200.

ALL LINES ARE REPORTED OPEN

Supt. C. E. Whelan of the Eastern Massachusetts street railway reported this morning that all lines were once more open after the recent storm.

For two days and nights Mr. Whelan went almost without sleep in an effort to get the lines cleared and in working order.

With the snow on the ground the company experiences no little trouble in delays from automobile trucks which use the car tracks to travel on to places where the snow is too deep to chance hauling a heavy load. Yesterday the Lawrence line was tied up for nearly two hours by a double auto truck accident which occurred near the First street car barns.

About 3 o'clock in the afternoon work was resumed at the main office in Prescott street that a load of furniture on route to Lawrence, had tipped over in the car tracks. Simultaneously it was reported a heavy truck had become stuck in the tracks at Lawrence and was being towed away from the furniture load.

It was impossible to do much with either sleep, so transfers had to be made from one car to another. The car from Lawrence came as far as the creek of the Lawrence end, while the car from Lowell went as far as the wreck on the Lowell side. The wrecking car proved of little value in clearing up the trouble. Finally the high powered wrecking auto owned by the Belvidere Garage company was sent to the scene and made short work of clearing away both wrecks. The furniture was loaded on a truck owned by the Arnold Green company of Boston going from Lowell to Lawrence while the other truck was owned by the St. J. Doyle company of Lawrence also going from Lowell to Lawrence.

JUDGE MURRAY WILL SPEAK HERE SUNDAY

At the monthly meeting of the League of Catholic Women to be held in Associate hall tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock, a splendid program which will compare favorably with those offered at previous meetings this winter, will be presented for the entertainment of the members.

The speaker of the day will be Judge Michael Murray of Boston and Brookline, a jurist of note in Suffolk county and an eloquent and forceful speaker. The judge has chosen as his topic, "The American Heritage," and there is no doubt in the minds of the officers of the league that his address on this subject will be one of the most interesting and profitable heard at any of the meetings of the league.

An excellent musical program has been arranged for the mandolin club by its director, Mr. Joseph A. Handley. This organization is splendidly equipped for entertaining purposes through the training received from Mr. Handley, and takes an important part in all the league activities. Vocal selections have also been planned, in which one of Lowell's leading singers will be especially prominent.

The league meetings have been so well attended this season that a capacity audience is looked for tomorrow, and the seating arrangements have been made for the officers to the end that all may enjoy the program comfortably.

GLoucester, Jan. 14.—Mayor Percy W. Damages of $1000 each were asked. The suits allege that the mayor's charges, as contained in a published statement, reiterating his inaugural remarks, wrongfully accused members of the committee of having acted dishonorably and of having violated the terms of the contest. Mayor Wheeler's statement had charged the members of the committee with borrowing for the Elsie "a longer mainboom yard than had been used during the season" and also with having used in the race sails larger than those which she ordinarily carried.

New Year's Day for Greeks

for in the old country, it is said, the observance of New Year's is similar to that of the observance of the Fourth of July in this country. Spades are fired on parks and public squares, the bells toll and everyone joins in the celebration in which the church, the state and the people at large take an active part.

The celebration in this city today consists mainly of family gatherings and gatherings in the coffee houses. Greetings are in order and in some cases gifts are exchanged. A feature of the day is the family dinner, the place of residence of which is a large silver or gold coin is placed inside the pie and when dinner is served the pie is cut in equal portions and each member of the family is given a piece, and according to tradition the lucky finder of the coin is to be blessed with happiness and prosperity during the entire year.

Man Ordered to Pay Daughter $1198

BANGOR, Me., Jan. 14.—Lorenzo D. Hatch of Corinna must pay his daughter, Mrs. Jennie McKenney of Dexter, $1198 if the law court sustaining the sealed verdict opened in the superior court today, awarding the daughter that amount as the result of injuries received in an automobile accident which she alleged was due to reckless driving of her father. The amount sued for was $5000. The award of the jury was appealed by the father.

To Open Wine Shops For Women

MONTREAL, Jan. 14.—The Quebec liquor commission is planning to open a wine shop for women, managed by members of their own sex in the heart of the shopping district. The purpose of the innovation is to make it unnecessary for women desiring to purchase wine to rub shoulders with mostly males who now frequent the commission's depots. Wine will be the only beverage sold.

Ask Germans to Surrender War Criminals

PARIS, Jan. 14.—(By the Associated Press)—Surrender of the Germans charged with offenses in connection with the war to the Allies for trial is recommended in two resolutions by the Inter-Allied commission on war crimes, made public today.

Gloucester Mayor Sued For Libel

GLoucester, Jan. 14.—Mayor Percy W. Wheeler whose recent inaugural address included criticisms of the American international race committee's conduct in connection with the fishermen's race last fall between the Elsie of Gloucester and the Bluenose of Nova Scotia, was made defendant today in 12 suits for libel brought by members of the race committee. Damages of $1000 each were asked. The suits allege that the mayor's charges, as contained in a published statement, reiterating his inaugural remarks, wrongfully accused members of the committee of having acted dishonorably and of having violated the terms of the contest. Mayor Wheeler's statement had charged the members of the committee with borrowing for the Elsie "a longer mainboom yard than had been used during the season" and also with having used in the race sails larger than those which she ordinarily carried.

Strike Against Packing Firms Called Off

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Termination of the strike against six local meat packing firms, allied with the big western packers, was announced today by Pendleton Dudley, eastern director of the Institute of Meat Packers, who said he had received a communication announcing the calling off of the strike from John Kennedy, president of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters & Butchers Workmen Union of New York. The decision today by Pendleton Dudley, eastern director of the Institute of Meat strikers in Chicago and other western cities.

West Palm Beach Course Will Interest Winter Golfers

Golfers who intend to pay Florida a visit this winter will be interested to know that a fine new course has just been completed at West Palm Beach.

The course is 6252 yards in length. It is located on the banks of the Lake Worth Okeechobee Canal, on the highway connecting West Palm Beach with the west coast and Tampa, by way of Lake Okeechobee and the Everglades.

The course is five miles from West Palm Beach, six miles from Palm Beach and 12 miles from Lake Worth.

The holes are remarkably balanced as to length and there are no two holes in the 18 exactly similar in character.

Both the first and tenth greens are at the clubhouse, affording two starting points, thereby reducing congestion to a minimum.

The loose sandy loam which characterizes the territory in that section of Florida, is very easy to handle. Massive ranges of hills have been constructed in lieu of bunkers.

It should prove a very popular course with those who desire to golf during the winter months.

Weather Bureau Issues Warning of Another Storm Moving Eastward

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Warning of another storm, from Delaware Breakwater to Eastport, Me., was issued today by the weather bureau. The warning said that a storm of marked intensity, central over northern Minnesota, was moving eastward rapidly and that southerly winds, increasing tonight, would reach gale force by 8 o'clock tomorrow morning. It was predicted that either snow or rain probably would accompany the winds.

Steps to Recover $20,000 of Town Funds

PALMER, Jan. 14.—Steps to recover $20,000 of town funds which Town Treasurer George E. Clough is alleged to have admitted taking from the treasury during the last three years and for which he is now under arrest on a charge of larceny were taken today when an attachment for $5000 was filed against Clough "by the inhabitants of the town of Palmer." This move is preliminary to action seeking reimbursement from the bonding company which is surety for Clough.

FORMING NEW FRENCH CABINET

Viviani Declines Poincare's Invitation to Become Minister of Justice

Tardieu Asked to Take Ministry of Liberated Regions — To Give Answer Today

PARIS, Jan. 14. (By the Associated Press)—M. Poincare, forming a French cabinet to succeed the Italian ministry, asked former Premier Rene Viviani to accept the post of minister of justice, with the vice presidency of the cabinet, but M. Viviani refused the portfolio, it was officially announced this afternoon.

M. Viviani, while expressing the closest sympathy with M. Poincare, it was stated, explained that he preferred continuing his work as France's representative in the League of Nations.

It was officially stated that M. Poincare intended asking M. Tardieu, head of the French delegation at the Washington conference, to continue as minister of the colonies.

M. Doumergue, president of the naval committee of the senate, has refused the portfolio of minister of marine, the announcement stated. As the minister of the cabinet stands at present, M. Maunoury is slated for the ministry of the interior, and M. de Lasteyrie for the ministry of finance, with M. Maginot probably retaining the ministry of pensions.

M. Poincare, it was added, expects to be minister of War, Barthoin and St. Herme are slated for the ministry of the interior, and M. de Lasteyrie for the ministry of finance, with M. Maginot probably retaining the ministry of pensions.

VIRTUAL COMPLETION OF NAVAL TREATY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—(By the Associated Press)—Virtual completion of the naval treaty found the arms delegates today concentrating attention more and more on the problems yet to be disposed of in the far eastern negotiations with settlement of the Shantung issue now viewed in many quarters as almost indispensable to the readjustment program undertaken there.

Consequently, that problem not only appeared to have been given the right of way, with another meeting of the Japanese and Chinese delegates the only item on the conference program today but was expected henceforth to be the subject of the active interest and study of all the governments represented in the effort to bring it to a final solution. It was the general view among the delegates that this would materially facilitate disposition of all remaining issues when the far eastern discussions were resumed.

Agreement having been reached by the "Big Five" regarding the disposition of prohibited warships, there remained to be settled today in completing the naval treaty only a few relatively unimportant details and the status quo arrangement regarding Pacific fortifications, the latter awaiting a reply expected hourly from Tokyo. The completed treaty was expected to be ready for an executive session of the full naval committee early next week.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

By the Theatres' Own Press Agents
B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE
Mystic Clayton, Famous Oriental Uccellist, Will Head Next Week's Program of His Acts—Excellent Bill Mystic Clayton, one of the finest successful of all occultists and rated generally as the biggest drawing card among mentalists, will appear in a special return engagement at the B.
F. Keith theatre next week. Clayton's first visit here was an unqualified success, and because of the very general desire that he should demonstrate his powers here once more, the management has made arrangements to present him. Clayton clothes his act with all of the outward symbols of oriental mysticism. There is the incense, laden air, the soft, seductive music of the east, and the hanging draperies. All of these things put an audience into the receptive frame of mind, but when Clayton appears the scenic effects and appointments are forgotten. The reading of minds is one of the very best things he does.

He is kindly, and invariably leaves his audience in the very best of humor.
Thomas J. Ryan & Co. will present
"Mrs. Haggerty's Reception," another one of the famous "Haggerty" series which Ryan and Richmond started some years ago, and which has come down to the present time as one of the very best of vaudeville's comedy features. In this latest production
Mr. Ryan will have the part of "Mike Haggerty," and it is, if anything, just a shade better than anything he has done heretofore in the characterization line.
Sylvia Clarke, who is the prettiest little, cutest little, kindest little known before the footlights, will present her dynamic act during the week.
It is a mixture of fun and music and dancing. Miss Clarke was an unqualified hit in Raymond Hitchcock's
"Hitchy Koo" in 1919, and in the following year she was with the Greenwich Polles.
Helen Hamilton and Jack Barnes are a perfect team—distinguished for rapid-fire comedy and yet without any of the slapstick features attached to it. They will stand up with among the best things that vaudeville has done in the way of real entertainment. And Paul Murray and Gladys Gerrish in "Studying the Stars" are a pair who have devoted much time to studying over Broadway favorites.

Their imitations are really more than that. Hinkle and Mae in "Catching a Car" are talkers and singers, and the Musical Gerald's are banjoists with an unique novelty to offer.

OPERA HOUSE

Offering at Opera House Next Week With Tell Story, Prison Bird, Who Tried to Go Straight
"Turn to the Right," the famous fun classic which comes to the Opera House next week, is the kind of a play that warms the hearts of the most fastidious audience members. It tells a quaint and amusing story of the efforts to "go straight" of a young man who has just finished a term at Sing Sing prison, and who returns to his home in a small New England village just in time to save the old homestead from being sold for debt.
Two New York crooks, safecracker and a pickpocket, old pals of the young man, arrive in the village, meet the simple, kind-hearted little girl, graduated from the city, and attempt to finish in the village against the village school. "I'll go to hell for that old lady," remarks the rough-neck safecracker, and around this sentiment hinges the entire story of the play, a masterful influence of a sweet, old country mother on three youngsters who have been steadily jogging the wrong trail. The safe-cracker and pickpocket, old pals of the school, and in other astonishing and ridiculous ways, the day for North Dancin' until the three young men through the organization of the syndicate to sell mother's peach jam and the dramatic, honest truth, the riches and happiness there is a laugh in about every line and a thrill or tear in every five. It abounds in sweet sentiment, in honesty, honest truth, in appeal and the author's treatment of a deeply spiritual theme is so ingenious in its detail and contrasting situations as to give the play a wit with some of the highest success of a generation. The lines are witty, the breezy crookedness of the two jolly crooks all contribute to the worth of the piece.
Harry Hollingsworth, the leading man of the company, whose past, offense have already made him expected to appear with the famous artist Miss Marguerite Fields in making the production wonderfully entertaining. This pair, whose talent is now too well known to need further comment of a favorable nature, will be assisted by Vincent Dennis, the juvenile man; Miss Ruth Fanning, the ingenue; and the other, William Worwick and the others.
In staging the piece, Director Albion and scenic artist Stillwell will lend their best effort, which they have assurance enough of its high character.
"Turn to the Right" seems destined to rank with the most successful efforts of the week stage in years, and judging from the large advance sale at this time, there is every reason to expect a realization of these hopes.
Our advice to those wishing the best entertainment in advance, well in advance, is to have their names placed on the subscription list. It costs no more.
Box office is open daily from 10 a. m.
to 9 p. m.
The first performance on Monday night will be given with the same smoothness and satisfaction as those during the week-end.

and "The Conquering Power," in playing the Dumas heroine, Nazimova follows the tradition that has led nearly all of the great actresses to give their place in their repertoire the tradition of Hearnard, Eleanor Duse, Clara Morris, Rebecca Modjeska, Laura Keane, Olga Rothemann, and Ethel Barrymore. In Rudolph Valentino, the dashing young actor who plays the part of Armand Duval, Nazimova has a leading man of brilliant gifts, who will much prize for his remarkable work in "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" and other big screen productions. The story of "Camille," which perhaps too well known to most of the patrons to need anything but brief reference, is about a young Parisian law student, Armand Duval, who loves Marguerite Gautier, before as a canaille, a notorious, beautiful woman, who abandons her Parisian haunts and decides to live simply and unostentatiously with him. Armand's father, anxious for the family honor, prevails on her to leave him. Camille consents, returns to her cabaret night life, but is deserted by her friends who have taken her for a slow. She sinks into poverty and neglect and at last dies, happy in the thought that she prevented Armand from ruining his chances for the family honor. In Nazimova's supporting cast includes Edward Grogan, the Irish Chorus King, four Irish and other well-known artists.

A rushing, roaring, sweeping, almost reckless, body of water, snow-drifts, and a mighty torrent of limber crashing, grinding all before it—logs bumping, splintering, in the swirling water, sweeping all before its relentless path. Such is one of the big thrills in "Conflict." The most gripping, soul-stirring moment ever filmed. The life in its intensity, the mighty log jam, the blowing up of the dam, and the swashing, torrent of felled forest in the mightiest spectacle of the camera's art. In all its splendor, in all its ruthless glory, "Conflict," Priscilla Dean's wonderful new Universal-Jewel creation of the film, vividly records the actual dynamiting of a huge dam and the breaking loose of hundreds of thousands of unprisoned logs. It's the story of a fight—a battle of two indomitable wills—the struggle of the man against the logging industry. In "Conflict," Miss Dean has the role of a young girl who is suddenly forced into a life of unhappiness and is torn between the love of a luxurious and happy life, and the love of other emotions are gripping in their dramatic appeal. The offering is a Stuart Panton stupendous production of the big north woods from the famous Red River story by Clarence Budling-Kelland. Every big thrill shown in a film is contained in this offering and besides there are several ones never before shown. Dean allowed that she would not take the chances she did in this film story for a million dollars. Life's too precious to risk on a mere gamble when she would take the chance again.
These two super-specials will run the entire week, and there will be the usual comedy and weekly to round out a truly superior bill.

as "Gina of Chinatown" and "The Sign of the Lamp." The locale is set in Limehouse, London, although it might be said to encompass the world when it comes to the final analysis of the human who trip gayly through the several scenes of dramatic effects directed by Mr. Griffith.
A trinity of characters in the persons of a young girl, Gypsy Fair,
"Spiky," McFadden, and his brother,
"Billie," are the youthful creatures around which is woven a romance of dramatic love filled with poetic visions and governed by the good and evil influences of this world symbolized in two remarkable characters.
They are Gooty, embodied in a street preacher and Billy, portrayed by a street fiddler. They seem to set the mental directions of our little people trotting through this street of dream and gaining a goal akin to paradise even on this earth.
Mr. Griffith has assembled a cast of talent to enact the roles of "Dream Street." Carl Dempster is the Gypsy Fair. "Spiky" Mc-Fadden of the story is taken by Tahm, Graves, while his brother
"Billie" is portrayed by Charles Em-met Mack. Tyrone Power is the symbolized street preacher for Good, and the Billy one in the street fiddler is done by Morgan Wallace. W. J.
Ferguson plays Gypsy's father and the great Sway Wan, of Chinese public birth, is impersonated by Edward Bell.

The second big feature for the first part of the week will be "Tricked," starring Irving Cummings, the noted star. "Tricked" is a dramatic story of the great Northwest which is bound to please by its force-fulness and simplicity. A comedy, the International News and Prizma picture will complete the bill.
Don't miss the Merrimack Square theater series of attractions, for "Romance Week," which has been set aside to mark the return of the country to good times and to take you and all your friends away from the drab cares of everyday life.

Fashion Suggestions, Valuable Household Tips and Other News of Interest to Women

FRITZIE SCHEFF SAYS THAT LACK OF INFANT EARL FIGHTS IN COURT

WORRY KEEPS HER FIT

FRITZ SCHEFF

The Sun asked several of the country's leading beauties how they keep beautiful. Following is what Fritz Scheff gave as her recipe for beauty. Others will tell their beauty secrets in stories to follow.

BY FRITZ SCHEFF
Kath. Vandeville Prima Donna.
Don't worry!
If women could only realize the destructive quality of worry, they would teach their daughters early in life to accept circumstance, try to better them if they wish, but not to fret and fuss over things.
I have seen beautiful faces of comparatively young women ruined by a nervous fretting attitude toward life. On the other hand I've seen women away along in years with the skin of a girl just because they learned to take a philosophical view of things.
Through my whole career I have clung to my "don't worry" theory—and that is what has kept me fit.

Cosmetics Needed
Cosmetics one must have. But they should be thoroughly washed off every night and the skin given a chance to breathe. The best method of removing cosmetics, as well as the soil of the day, is to cream the face well first.

Slather the cream over the skin very generously and then wipe it off with a soft and very clean towel. It may be necessary to use a second coating of cream if all of the traces of cosmetics have not been removed.
Then the water! Nothing quite like soap and water for a healthy, youthful skin. Possibly it won't be necessary to use soap with the water bath after the cream wash—that all depends upon the condition of the skin—but the last rinsing should be with cold water.

Clothing Physic
I have no patience with clothing which conceals the lines of the figure. No woman can be truly beautiful in a frock or gown which is nothing more than an indistinct maze of material with no lines, no accent, no tone value.

If I wear something with the loose line prevalent just now it is invariably transparent with a pretty foundation built on good distinct lines. The whole charm of dress is in its line—not its material.

BY MILTON BRONNER
LONDON, Jan. 14.—Mrs. Eleanor White Hughes Brownlee, whose spectacular gains on British race tracks have made her name well known in society here, will be the central figure in the most spectacular will contest of recent years.

The contest involves the $3,000,000 estate of the late Earl of Shrewsbury, the bulk of which was left to Mrs. Brownlee. The contestant is the infant Earl of Shrewsbury. Mrs. Brownlee came to England from the Argentine. She began immediately to make large sums by clever race track plays.

Her most spectacular success was the purchase of a horse called Shoemaker. The horse was lame. Her friends ridiculed the purchase.
But Shoemaker's lameness healed and he won his mistress $55,000. Mrs. Brownlee's fondness for horse racing led to her acquaintance with the Earl of Shrewsbury. When the earl died he left her his whole estate save a few small bequests.

The infant earl, in his contest, declares the old earl was incapable of managing his affairs and that Mrs. Brownlee took advantage of his mental state.
Mrs. Brownlee denies all this. Meanwhile the executor of the will is pressing to have it probated.

A HAT THAT ADDS HEIGHT

BY MARIAN HALE
NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—There is, just now, tremendous bent for the wearing of plumage standing upright at the front of the hat.
And the fancy is quite all right for the woman whose face is full enough to take lengthening effects. It is a welcome novelty for the short woman.

This black Polart hat emphasizes the effect of the upright ornament by employing the narrow back and front trim, widening at the sides.

THE CHOKER'S COMING BACK

BY MARIAN HALE
NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—High collars against collars which fairly extend to the ears!
Every new and then some designer, tired of gowks that are cut in V's and circles at the neck attempts to cover up Millady's chin with ruchings, ribbons and such!
This Polart frock has the popular round-neck effect but a white organdy choker conceals the throat and extends quite up to the chin and ears. When there are collars at all, this season, they are very high!

A slight accenting of the waistline is a notable feature of new gowns for day wear.
As in this case, the accenting is done with the cut of the garment, not so often with belt or wash effects. There is even a hint of the basque, which extends, from fitting, down over the skirt.
Pleated skirts are much used for street wear.

CHICAGO WOMAN IS MODISTE TO DOLLS ALL OVER THE WORLD

MRS. KATHERINE A. RAUSER, HER DOLL CLOTHES FACTORY AND ONE OF THE SHOW CASES

By N.E.A. Service.
CHICAGO, Jan. 14.—When a business woman's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of—doll clothes!
What then?
Fortune and success—in the case of Mrs. Katherine A. Rauser, head of a $100,000 corporation.
Employing 100 Women

Sixteen years ago she was a clerk in a department store. Today the business which she conceived out of the air custom of her dreams—an industry devoted to the manufacture of detachable doll clothing—brings in a handsome income and gives employment to 100 other women.
Mrs. Rauser's factory is, really, a dressmaking establishment of the highest order, where doll costumes receive as much attention as do those for women of the most particular dress tastes.
She started operations with one sewing machine. At that time there were no dolls on the market with removable clothing. It was a slow process to educate the world to accept artistic and expensive creations in doll raiment. But time and patience turned the trick.

New Styled Each Year
Each year, now, brings a new style in doll clothing. Everything from ballroom frocks to bathing suits. The Rauser factory covers 10,000 square feet of space and has elaborate show rooms. Orders come from all corners of the globe.

Mrs. Rauser says it is all the result of her dreams.
"This is the age of feminine achievement," she says. "Women are coming into their own at last. They have capacities for success never before realized."
"As creators women have the advantage over men. It is their business to create. The coming generation will show what women can do when this faculty is given a chance to assert itself in the business world."

PLEASE THE WOMEN AND YOU WILL SUCCEED

NEW SPRING HATS ARE GAY "GARDENS"

BY MARIAN HALE
NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Such a wealth of flowers and fruit and foliage as her spring hat must wear!
There's little of the sombre about the headwear being shown in smart shops. Verily, the chapeau one sees, already venturing the cold winds, are gardens, gaily colored and wondrously beautiful.

A great colorful cluster—rich in tone as wild fruits and flowers—hugs the crown of this Ponch hat and extends in a graceful vine to the edge of the wide brim.

Distinction between fruit and flowers seems to have been quite forgotten by the up-to-date millinery world.
A lovely little thing that win the central note of a bunch of weight small fruits. Deep pink and tan roses are poised among velvety peaches and their waxy foliage.

Color, lots of it everywhere seems to be the beautiful objective of the designers in their efforts on early hats.

gingham curtains was Mrs. Stone's stepping stone to success.
Her first job was to fill a high-priced apartment building at a time when everyone was lambasting landlords.

She immediately fitted up a model furnished apartment in the building. She had the kitchen painted white and put checked gingham curtains at the windows.

"It's bad psychology to take women tenants into bare apartments," she said.

every woman's husband signed on the dotted line.
Now landlords importune Mrs. Stone to rent their apartments for them.
"It's the little things that win the women," she says. "And as they do 90 per cent. of the buying and 100 per cent. of the deciding, it's a pretty good plan to please them."

A SPRING HAT IN TAFFETA

BY MARIAN HALE
NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Very small and very bright as to color are the taffeta hats shown for spring.
Brilliant things they are—with, usually, a bit of embroidery, a coquettish pom-pom, saucy tassel or an ornamant thrust through the crown on one side.

Like this Ponch hat, silken headwear, very often takes the form of a tam-o-shanter. The one shown is of light green, embroidered in black silk thread, shot with silver.

CEREAL DISHES

Left-over cereal, may always be used up in a muddle dish. If a large amount is left, it may be molded and sliced and fried for luncheon, or a smaller amount can be used in a pudding.
A cereal pudding, has much food value and should follow a light meal. Learn to eat the dessert count as so many necessary calories of food rather than just so much more that would not be eaten if it were not sweet and specially attractive.

IRELAND'S RESPONSIBILITIES

We are not among those who expect, to see prolonged discussion between the contending parties under the new government of Ireland. We feel that the issues will be submitted to the people and there finally settled in accordance with majority rule. We do not believe that Mr. de Valera will play the part of a wrecker because he was unable to get the kind of settlement he wanted. It is possible that had the negotiations been longer continued, the Irish people might have secured a little better bargain, and it is equally possible that they might not. The assumption of Mr. de Valera is that they could have compelled England to recognize the republic or a form of government equally good. Perhaps they could have done so by renewing the warfare and perhaps not.

The whole question at the present time seems to be the acceptance of a substantial certainty or its rejection for a very splendid ideal which will undoubtedly be cherished by the Irish people until finally realized. But its realization at present does not seem either probable or possible in view of existing conditions.

That is why we believe the Irish people should unite in making the most of their opportunity to build up a united Ireland to develop the industrial resources of their country, to keep their people at home and increase the population to something like what it was before the famine of 1847.

Already we know of great numbers of Irish immigrants in this country who have expressed the intention of returning to Ireland after the government of the Irish Free State shall have been put in operation. Many Irish-American capitalists who are engaged in various lines of manufacturing industry here, will also go over there and establish new industries which will help to provide opportunities of earning a livelihood for the young people and, therefore, to make it desirable for them to remain in their own country and help to make Ireland a prosperous and contented nation.

Before the Irish people can obtain the full confidence and respect of the world, they will have to unite and prove that they are not the turbulent, disorderly, shiftless, criminal and vicious race of people that they have been represented to be by volumes of British propaganda sent all over the world during the past ten years. They have been represented in some of this propaganda as little better than savages, and this at a time when the black and Tana were ravaging the land and spreading a reign of terror wherever they went.

The Irish people must so conduct their new government as to give the lie to these calumnies and prove that, despite all assertions to the contrary, they are capable of governing themselves much better than ever they were governed by England. This cannot be done if a minority sets out to fight the recognized majority placed in power by a vote of the people. If the new Irish Free State attains prosperity with peace and order, it can then turn to the ideals advocated by Mr. de Valera with more hope of success than if it were still under the heel of Dublin castle. It is a proud day for Ireland when the military forces of Great Britain are withdrawn and Dublin castle is turned over for the use of the Irish administration. If the Irish leaders in their new parliament show even a fraction of the savagery, unity and patriotism displayed in their two years of warfare against England, they will win the admiration of the world and in no other way can they more effectively advance the ideals of Ireland's complete independence.

AS TO RECOGNIZING RUSSIA

There is much discussion at the present time as to whether the United States should recognize the government of Soviet Russia. The fact that Russia has been invited to enter the economic conference at Geneva brings up again her diplomatic standing among the other nations. The supreme council of the allies in this recognizing Russia, laid down certain conditions under which alone her representatives would be admitted to the council. These impose upon her the assumption of responsibility for adherence to any policies to which she may be a party and for the discharge of her national obligations to other powers. Evidently she would not have been invited, but for the fact that Russia is regarded as a vital element in the present economic crisis and that no general policy for the rehabilitation of Europe could be made effective without the co-operation of Russia.

Secretary of State Hughes in discussing the status of Russia on March 23, 1921, said:

"If fundamental changes are contemplated, involving due regard for the protection of persons and property, and the establishment of conditions essential to the maintenance of commerce, this government will be glad to have convincing evidence of the consummation of such changes, and until this evidence is supplied to perceive that there is any proper basis for considering trade relations."

It appears that no such convincing evidence has yet been forthcoming except in the promises of the Lenin and Trotsky regime which Secretary Hughes does not accept as reliable. Possibly the participation of Russia in the Geneva conference will bring the Soviet leaders to adopt a line of policy that will be acceptable to the allied powers represented in the conference and will, therefore, offer additional reasons as to why the Soviet regime should receive diplomatic recognition.

As yet the United States has not decided the question as to whether we shall enter the Geneva conference and even should we take part in the work of the conference, that is not likely to change the relations between this government and Russia. Nevertheless, there is a growing agitation in favor of recognizing the Russian government on the ground that the people have the undisputed right of selecting their own form of government and that it is none of our business what that form is, provided it meets its obligations to the other governments of the world. In that there is a principle of democratic doctrine, but there is another consideration to offset this which is that the government shall represent the people and have organized control over the territory it is supposed to rule.

SAFETY ON RAILROADS

The New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad has made an interesting comparison of the actual risks in modern railroad travel. During the year 1920, the railroads of the country carried about 1,300,000,000 passengers, of whom one person was killed for every group of 5,673,000, while in a total of 122,000,000 carried in 1920 the death rate was one to every 1,523,000, which means that the danger of fatal accidents on the railroads in 1920 was less than one-third of what it was in 1920. This has been due mainly to the Safety First campaign, although at that time several new safety devices have been introduced and the removal of grade crossings has prevented many fatalities. Here in our own city, as many as half a dozen grade crossings have been removed in recent years, the most dangerous of them having been at School street, Walker street, Main street and Pawtucket street. Several such crossings were also abolished when the Boston and Maine cars ceased running into the old depot.

The old Middlesex street crossing still remains, although for thirty years its abolition has been agitated by the city government. The old board of trade at one time had plans all prepared for the change, with a long list of property damages on Middlesex street; but apparently the expense staggered the railroad company and the work has been put off from time to time on the plea of economy.

Fatal accidents were quite frequent at the grade crossings mentioned and we assume that the same is true of other cities, so that this increased safety in practically all the large cities of the country contributes much to the very satisfactory showing set forth by the statisticians of the New Haven road.

The railroads and the public are alike the gainers by this progress in the direction of absolute safety in railroad travel—a goal that can never be fully attained.

FOR NEW STATE PRISON

The present legislature will have an opportunity to pass upon a bill providing for the erection of a new state prison to take the place of the present makeshift at Charlestown, which should long ago have been condemned even on the ground of unsanitary conditions.

In the last annual report of the commissioner of correction, the state prison is described as follows:

"The present structure was built in 1855. It is antiquated, out of date and hard to keep clean. It is in a congested and dirty location. There are no adequate hospital facilities. There is no concrete dining-room, with the result that the men are obliged to eat all their meals in their cells. This is unhygienic, wasteful of food and conducive to malarial conditions. The absence from the cells of any kind of plumbing makes necessary the obnoxious and unhealthy 'bucket system' and in general the cell block condition is not conducive to health."

We feel that it is almost an insult to our readers to print that description; but there are the facts and we feel that public sentiment should be aroused so as to get behind the demand for a new and up-to-date building.

THE NEWBERRY DECISION

It was expected, of course, that the republicans would send Newberry to the republican senate, who for a considerable time since he took office constituted the sole majority in the upper branch of congress. It was not denied that about $200,000 was spent to secure his election and the defeat of Henry Ford, his opponent; but Newberry testified before the senate that this was done without his knowledge or consent. This flagrant and high-handed purchase of a seat in the senate is another blot upon the record of the republican party and a blow to the principle of representative government. Newberry was opposed by the solid democratic membership and nine members of his own party. Their names should be remembered, as they regard honorable service and observance of law as of higher importance than the retention of a senatorial seat which was secured by the notoriously corrupt use of money. These senators are: Horah, Canper, Jones of Washington, Kenyon, Ladd, La Follette, Norbeck, Norris and Sutherland.

GOLD AND MONEY

Only $15,000,000 worth of gold was mined in America last year. That is a small fraction of the income of the American people.

Henry Ford wants to base money on the products of human energy, instead of gold. A banknote would be a mortgage on so many hours of work instead of a handful of gold.

America each year produces, by human labor, a total value five times as big as all the gold in the world. Which would be the better security? There was a time when the precious metals used as money were actually exchanged from hand to hand in the largest business transactions. That was before paper money was issued to be used instead of the metal coins. The time may come when our money may be based on a medium fully as reliable as gold; but not so concentrated. The chief danger in such a venture would be inflation to be followed by the reverse process of deflation, a reality with which the people of this nation have had a bitter experience following several money panics and two wars.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES

Interest on long-time loans in New York City drops to 4% per cent., which is the lowest rate since August, 1917.

This is important to borrowers. It is more important to the average citizen, not in the market for loans. Cheap money—low interest—always is a forerunner of good times.

There are some other, signs of coming prosperity. One of these is that fire losses are dropping. Credit men say that this is a sure sign of easier money conditions and that fewer business men are burning their properties to collect insurance for meeting their bills. Fire losses during December of last year amounted to $7,365,600 as against $11,137,600 in December of 1920.

GOOD SUGGESTION

Mayor Brown's suggestion that the municipal departments should have cheaper cars and all of the same kind is a good one; but, of course, it does not imply that the cars now in use should be sold out to make place for a new set. In line with this proposed reform, it might also be arranged that no department should have more than one chauffeur except where the auto is liable to be called out at any hour of the day or night.

Marquis Okuma, whose death in Tokio is now confirmed by official government dispatches, was a great admirer of the life of Thomas Jefferson. Perhaps after all, his genuine ideals for a modern and peaceful Japan came from a book of Jefferson's life which was given to him many years ago by William Jennings Bryan.

And some curious folks with a craving thirst are trying to find out the difference between ethyl and methyl alcohol, according to reports from the banned liquor hunters in New York. The experiment usually means death.

The demand for more subway exits is agitating the populace in old New York, but Lowell would be happy with one good waiting station in the vicinity of Merrimack square on nights like Wednesday.

Imports of luxuries during the past year fell off very appreciably as might be expected, the value for 1921 being $330,000,000 as against $575,000,000 in 1920. The people need actual necessities, not luxuries, under present conditions.

The new senator from Pennsylvania is regarded in his home town as "one of the salts of the earth." Well, if he is, the party needs him as a sort of antidote to the malarious Newberry case.

SEEN AND HEARD

"Doc" Bartlett says "I do" is a life sentence.

"That crowling you hear is a Dracut rook," a bird, a four ounce egg there yesterday.

Amundsen will forecast the weather as follows: "That's a cuss; winter, spring, summer, fall."

The immigrants think they have a right to this country because it was discovered by an immigrant.

Boom for Numbers

Prohibition is a boom for the plumbing business is apparent in Indian Orchard, following the recent raids made by Federal Agents Harold L. Harvey and C. C. Sheridan, assisted by members of the local police department. Urgent calls have been sent to plumbers as the result of the sewers being clogged with muck and hurriedly discarded when the dry forces put in appearance.

Gas Consumption

Not counting debt in congress, Americans used $15,551,000,000 cubic feet of artificial gas last year. This is an achievement, considering it was a generation ago when men had to wash the smoke chimneys of the kerosene oil lamps and trim their wicks daily. In about one more generation, the only heating and lighting will be by electricity and the wick will be a good legacy for grandchildren.

In the Elk Business

Representative Kroeber of Pennsylvania was walking into the house of a building carrying a package under his arm. It was not a large package, but he carried it with a very well have looked suspicious. A friend came along and saw the package. He said with a smile: "Ah—bottle of beer." "No," said Mr. Kroeber, "bottle of beer." He is one of the big shoe manufacturers of the country.—Washington Star.

Hard to Believe

Two traveling men were driving in Maine to Stroud from Farmington in an automobile last week. Far way up they stuck in a snow drift. A man with his team hauled them out of the drift. "How much?" asked one of the men. "Gimme a dime," said the native. They gave him a quarter and drove off. Returning they got stuck in the same drift and the same man hauled them out. One of them passed the man a half dollar. "You overpaid me," said the native. "I told you I would take a dime," said the native. "I don't want anything this time!"

Testing Moonshine

A Lowell dealer paid the best way to test the strength of moonshine whiskey or even high-power" collared wine is to soak a piece of raw beef-steak in them. The steak probably will have the surplus alcohol off. That is certain proof that the beverage contains a "kick," also proof of what it does to inside of the human body. Wine, unless scientifically made, turns to vinegar, an acetic-acid compound. Get the cross between wine and vinegar and the moonshine is not so palatable, which incinerates like sulphuric acid.

It's Coming to Him

An immigrant arrives in New York from Danzig. He traveled first-class because, as he explained, he was "a learned man." His wife, not being "learned," made the trip in the steerage. Can you imagine an American woman making a trip with her husband under such circumstances? After that, the immigrant has been in our country a few years and gets a good whiff of the American spirit of freedom and equality. His friend husband is more apt to travel in the steerage and his first cabin, in any vacation trip to the fatherland.

Not Strictly Enjoyable

"Nothing new to speak of," commented a resident of Straddle Ridge, Ark. "Everything" went along well enough, though, till I felt drawn to a bottle of bone dry hick on me, out on the dark porch. Just as I had my head thrashed back, another fellow came around the corner, ran into me and knocked the bottle from my hand. The hick spilled all over one of the dogs, and the poor animal gave a yelp and jumped into the house through the open window and went to running around in circles. The women folks set up a scream that the dog was mad, and several of 'em fainted, and such as that. Jig was right, and his best dog. He couldn't stand off whether it was the fellow that brung the hick or me that dropped it, or the fellow that ran against me and made me drop it, that was a shame for the trouble, and so he licked all three of us. So, anyway I didn't have no great amount of fun.—Kansas City Star.

Not His Job

That fellow, one of the local militia who caught pneumonia, because he would not close a window near, the machine he worked on, saying, "It's not my job to close windows," reminds me of the little rhyme by the Keystone Lubricating Co. of Philadelphia, Pa., issued 10 years ago. It runs something like this:

"I'm not supposed to do that," said he. When an extra task he chanced to see, "That's not my job, and it's not my care."

So I'll pass it by and leave it there. And weekly pay. Lost more than his wages on him that day.

"I'm not supposed to do that," he said. "That duty belongs to Jim or Fred." So a little fellow was in his way, that he could have handled without delay.

Was left unfinished; the way was for a heavy loss that he could have saved.

And time went on and he kept his place. But he never altered his easy pace. And folks remarked on how well he

The time of tasks he was hired to do. For never once was he known to turn his hand to things not of his concern.

But there in his foolish rut he stayed. And for all he did, he was fairly paid. But he never was worth a dollar more.

That's not for his toil when the work was o'er. For he knew too well when his work was through. And he'd done all he was hired to do.

If you want to grow in this world, young man, You must do every day all the work you can. If you find a task, though it's not your job, And it should be done, take care of it.

Or you'll never conquer or rise if you do only the things you're supposed to do.

Incidentally the fellow who failed to close the window because it was another fellow's job had a solid oak casket with extension handles presented to him by grieving relatives.—Lawrence Telegram.

MAN ABOUT TOWN

The annual banquet of the Lowell Driving club, which comes along before many weeks, is expected to bring numerous out-of-town horsemen to this city, for the event is always looked forward to with a good deal of interest. Brother Clark of New Bedford tells me that a number of local horsemen are going down to the Bay State circuit banquet in Boston, too. The river races are not yet on the cards, but someone will place a friendly wager one of these days that others will want to grab, and then the flags will go up and Lowell folks engaged in the future may see something exciting. The races are usually run quarter-miles on the river stretch. The half is too long for good, speedy sport, and I am told that there can be held more and better contests between well-matched horses on a "quarter drive" than as if fewer and longer races were run off. A lot of money is reported to be at stake in several local contests and Fannie O. may yet have to come out of her stable for something else beside a little daily workout along the snowpats.

Speaking of the departure yesterday of officials of the chamber of commerce, Jaffrey, N. H., to attend the winter "polar meeting" of the executives of the chambers of commerce, Carl E. Shumway, former president of the Dartmouth Outing club, has been known to climb Mt. Washington on skis in mid-winter, appeared only in his shirt-sleeves and running pants, with light shoes, at the summit of the mountain. He struck a 60-mile gale and with the temperature 30 degrees below zero, he was glad enough to have available cold-proof woolen clothing on his next jaunts to the mountain tops. Friends of the chamber of commerce party tell me that several dress suit cases were packed to the "upper" end of the mountain. The old hotel, however, continued to do business and make money, too, for autoists, old and young, traveling through Roussauville preferred the food and lodging of the old-fashioned variety, rather than the Sign on a Market street place, "Established 65 Years," reminds me of a story I hear told in Albany, N. Y., a few years ago. An old tavern on Roussauville, across the Hudson river from Albany) bore a large sign over the front door that read: "Established 135 years ago." Another hotel was erected last year within a short distance of the old hostelry, and this sign went up: "Established This Year. No more letters in name." The old hotel, however, continued to do business and make money, too, for autoists, old and young, traveling through Roussauville preferred the food and lodging of the old-fashioned variety, rather than the

DOES YOUR HEALTH FAIL IN WINTER?

Some people gain in strength and health every summer only to lose all they have gained when cold weather arrives. These people are inclined to this blood. They are what doctors call anemic and are easy victims to winter colds, influenza and other weakening disorders that exposure to cold and dampness may produce. It is possible for such people to increase their resistance to disease and to build up their general health by bringing their blood up to normal.

"Last fall," says Mrs. James Minor, of No. 89 Hudson street, Providence, R. I., "I seemed to get into a run-down condition and was not well all winter. I was all tired out and had pains all over me. I was very nervous and did not sleep well. Indigestion troubled me and I had pains around my heart and in my chest. I was subject to severe headaches and dizzy spells, was weak and drowsy and did not feel like doing anything."

"Nothing helped me until I tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills which I read about in the paper. They made me feel much better in a short time. I took four boxes in all and I feel greatly in strength. I sleep well, have no more indigestion, headaches or dizziness and my nerves are much stronger. I have been unusually well since I took Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I am glad to recommend them."

A valuable booklet, "Building Up the Blood," will be sent free upon request. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price 50 cents per box, by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.—Adv.

new. Later, the new hostelry failed and was turned into a home for the poor, Sic!

Matt Bradford is one of the leading members of the Lowell Driving club's banquet committee, which is planning for the big event next month. Anything that Brother Matt has to do with always goes along successfully. I shall expect to see him on that handsome stallion out at Golden Cove again next summer.

The storage warehouse company that now occupies a large portion of the old Harvard brewery is doing a big business, I am told. The offices and storages, of course, are about the same, but for any such business, new, and while the name "Harvard" still shows here, there and everywhere on buildings, windows and advertising matter still lying around in some of the brewery quarters, the storage company is now on deck and several cars of goods a day are being shipped out of the well and numerous cars come in regularly. The Main about Town hears it is a splendid thing to note that a live organization is in charge of this valuable place of property and is getting something out of it, for at one time its fate appeared to be settled when prohibition was announced. The railroad track facilities at the brewery plant are excellent.

When James S. Hanson passed away, the other day, the horsemen of Lowell and vicinity mourned to a man. It happened to a horseman around the stables on the afternoon of the funeral and noticed little groups of people standing around outside the barn, but no one could get in, for everything had been locked tight since Mr. Hanson's death, and not a sale was made until after the day of the funeral. It was sincere mourning, too, and all of the Hanson customers sympathized deeply with the relatives of the man who had passed on. As a mark of respect, a large and extremely beautiful funeral decoration and wreath with a large ribbon tied on the upper side was hung on the main door of the stables, and remained there until the deceased horseman was interred. That funeral emblem on the big barn was admired by thousands of men, women and children who pass the stables daily.

With a couple of more storms like that of Wednesday there would be a recurrence of the conditions that prevailed two years ago when the snow was packed in a solid mass on the streets to a height of a foot above the sidewalks, as the result of several heavy falls on consecutive days. On streets where the street railway ran, it will be remembered, there were miniature railways, the wheels were practically useless, horse-drawn carriages enjoying a brief return to popularity. Happily a few days of pleasant weather have intervened since Wednesday's storm, and the work of clearing the streets is being rapidly accomplished by the street department.

BIG MUSICAL REVUE BY THE Y. M. C. I.

The Annual Musical Revue of the Young Men's Catholic Institute is all set for presentation next Tuesday evening, in Assembly hall and from all indications it will surpass anything yet attempted in this line by the popular Belvidere organization. Since settings, costumes, presentation and, in fact, everything connected with the musical revue will be new to the public, and will certainly be called "a musical triumph." The show has been prepared and cleverly assembled along original lines by the director, John F. McCaffrey, with the entire support of the members of the institute and their lady friends. Among the singers who will contribute to the program will be Miss Sadie Sherman, Lowell's favorite contralto. Miss Theresa McCarron, a great Y.M.C.I. favorite, Miss Dorothy Nolan, a newcomer in Y.M.C.I. circles, but who is bound to make a decided hit in the coming show. Miss Dorothy Conley, who presents dance specialties, Eddie Donahue, melodious tenor and Thomas Kelly, who played the leading male part in "Springtime" last fall. The entire comprise a sextette of musicians and singers that is hard to

Berton Braley's Daily Poem INTENTIONS

There's a lot of letters I ought to write
To friends I've seriously neglected;
I think my missives might bring delight
Perhaps the more if they're unexpected.
I ought to show that I still devote
Some time and thought to their joy or sorrow,
So I'll scribble each of my friends a note—
Tomorrow!

There's a lot of books that I ought to read,
Books on science and art and beauty
And classic stuff that I really need,
Perusing which is a bounden duty.
I must start in on a reading course,
Buying what books I cannot borrow,
I'm gonna begin with vim and force—
Tomorrow!

There's a lot of calls that I ought to make
On several of my near-by neighbors;
And I ought to aid, for charity's sake,
The poor in all of their weary labors.
I've never shared in my neighbor's grief
Nor worried about his joy or sorrow,
But I'm gonna turn over a brand new leaf—
Tomorrow!

There is a proverb I know full well
Which, more or less succinctly, mentions
That most of the pavements down in hell
Are builded largely of good intentions;
So I'd better put some of my notions through,
For there ain't much credit a guy can borrow,
Because of things he was gonna do—
Tomorrow!

"Brady" Brady, whose ability as a singer and a funny man is known to all, is exceptional. "Charlie" Keyes, another favorite, and a singing comedian who has been classed among the city's best; Eddie Cawley, the Irish lad, and the "strong man" of the Y.M.C.I. and circle who never fails to put across his original brand of fun and songs; Frank O'Neill, another Y.M.C.I. end men veteran; Joseph Craven, last year's favorite, and who will be on hand to put "pep" into things and contribute a lively musical hit of the season.

Thomas B. Higgins, Esq., will officiate as Interlocutor. A trained chorus of almost 100 voices will be heard to advantage throughout the greater part of the program, and this chorus will be comprised of about 60 attractive young ladies, who have entered into the spirit of the revue with great enthusiasm, assisted by members of the Y.M.C.I. The final rehearsal will be held tomorrow afternoon in the Institute hall at 2.30 o'clock.

WILL NOT ERECT

MEMORIAL THIS YEAR

The project for the erection by the Pawtucketville Memorial association of a granite monument in memory of the boys of that section who served in the World War has received a temporary setback on account of the high price of material and will probably not be erected this year. Although nearly $3500 is now on hand for the purpose of establishing this memorial, the officers of the association state that after investigation the amount is not half large enough at present prices. Many quarrymen have advised the postponement of the undertaking for the present.

The Boston Art commission, Messrs. Longfellow and McGuinness, has stated its belief that all buildings contiguous to the property should be removed, another troublesome proposition for the association, for such action can be taken only by the park department of the city of Lowell. This recommendation is for the purpose of obtaining a more artistic background for the memorial, since the old jam factory on Riverside street is among the buildings in the background. The work of removing these buildings has not been done because of the exhaustion of the city government's appropriation.

The projected memorial is to be erected at the children's park on the western side of the Merrimack river. It is to be of granite, with a facade sufficiently large to permit the names of all Pawtucketville residents who served in the great war to be engraved thereon. A space is to be provided at the bottom for the seating of a band, that band concerts may be given at the spot in the future.

Deaths From Heart Disease Increase

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—The hustle and bustle of the metropolis is partly responsible for an increase in the number of deaths from heart disease, Health Commissioner Copeland said today. Too keen an interest in the stock market is a contributing factor. Commenting on the fact that 12,000 persons died in New York of heart trouble last year, an increase of 664 over 1920—he said: "People run up subway stairs two steps at a time and are hurrying all day long. The means of transportation are so crowded a man stands up twice where he sits down once. In short, the New Yorker is nervous at repose. From the time he arises from his bed, until he goes to bed, he is on the go. He swallows his meals hastily and at night, after a long ride in the subway in the after-theatre jam, he goes home and has not had one minute rest during the day."

Demand for Bathtub Stoppers in Russia

MOSCOW, Jan. 14.—The enterprising merchant who provides a supply of bathtub and wash basin stoppers for Russia will be hailed enthusiastically by foreigners and natives alike, as these necessary articles have utterly disappeared. The inhabitants are using corks and wooden plugs wrapped with cloth. The most popular member of the American colony now in Moscow is a young woman who thoughtfully brought a supply of rubber stoppers from New York and distributed them among her friends as Christmas presents.

Embezzlement of State Funds Charged

PORTLAND, Me., Jan. 14.—Dr. William H. Lynch of this city, local veterinary surgeon, was charged with embezzlement of $2424 of state funds in his office while serving as state livestock sanitary commissioner, in one of the secret indictments reported yesterday by the superior court grand jury. Three counts were contained in the indictment, charging that he converted to his own use, $1208 on Oct. 9, 1920, $89 on Feb. 3, 1921, and $1127 on March 1, 1921. Bail for his appearance in court was given.

Canned Music and Movies Combined in New Invention

JACKIE COOGAN AND THE CINEMAPHONE, A NEW INVENTION WHICH COMBINES CANNED MUSIC AND MOVIES.

BY JAMES W. DEAN
NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—An invention which combines a motion picture projector and screen with a phonograph, promises a new form of entertainment for the home.

The cabinet of the phonograph encloses a rear projector, automatic projector control and a prearranged container. A series of mirrors project the picture against silk screen 12 by 16 inches, which is revealed when the doors of the phonograph are opened. The machine is operated by electricity.

Only three of the machines have been constructed. Jackie Coogan, the seven-year-old star, was the first to be featured in a demonstration of the machine. "My Boy" was projected while a disc record played an accompaniment.

The invention is the work of A. L. Edmonson of Los Angeles. He calls it the cinemaphone.

The most interesting experiment to be made with this machine, as this writer sees it, is a condensed film version of opera to be synchronized with phonograph records of the opera music.

ROMANCE OF INDUSTRY
You sit before the screen and watch the pictures flicker by, but do you ever wonder about the romance that lies in the making of the little celluloid strip that makes possible the projection of comedy and tragedy, history and romance before you?

"A Movie Trip Through Cincinnati" is a two-reel picture now current. It shows how films are made at Kodak Park, Rochester, N. Y. It also gives some idea of the extent of the film industry. Four million pounds of raw cotton are used yearly in the manufacture of films. It is first reduced to an emulsion by acids.

Three tons of pure silver bullion are used each week to make the salt for the sensitive coating. The only establishment using more silver is the United States mint.

This one plant turns out 147,000,000 feet of film a year. That would go around the world six times.

ANOTHER LAUGH
Producers have been criticized frequently because they change titles of films even though the film stories are not much changed from the printed version. In the case of "Star Dust" the title is retained and the story changed and the producer is criticized for that. The show is still on the same foot.

"MATHEUS SANDORF"
A French film version of Jules Verne's "Matheus Sandorf" will soon be released in this country by Pathé. It has been running for several months at more than 100 theatres in Paris. It was produced by Louis Nalpas, who filmed "Monte Cristo."

WITH THE CAMERAMAN
Constance Binney completes "The Sleep Walker."

The mother role in "Hungry Hearts" is played by Rose Rosanova. Eight bulls are used in a bull fight scene in a new comedy featuring Bobby Vernon.

William Russell completes "Strength of the Pines." Irene Rich is leading lady.

Edward Hearn plays the lead opposite Mary McEvoy in "Through a Glass Window."

"I'll gain pain" is the moral of "The Bear and the Bees," the next Acrop film fable.

Four Chaplin comedies are to be re-issued by First National. They are "A Dog's Life," "Sunshine," "Shoulder Arms" and "A Day's Picnic."

Yes, here's another title change. "Judith of Blue Lake Ranch" with Pauline Frederick and Tom Santschi, has been changed to "Two Kinds of Women."

Atre this season and manager Trager has been to assure us that they will be shown again. "The Power" is a Rex Ingram production for Metro, and in it Mr. Ingram plays the assistance of the master of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," the superb feature that it was. At its New York premiere, "The Conquering Power" was claimed with justly deserved enthusiasm, some reviewers even asserting that it passed "The Four Horsemen."

The story is an adaptation of Balzac's famous novel "Eugene Grandet." The scene is laid in a provincial city of France, where the miserly old Grandet hoards his gold and lives in poverty with his daughter Eugenie, a nephew, Charles, a young bon vivant, and a son of a bankrupt, who is thrown upon the charity of the state, and is accordingly thrown out, shipping to Martinique with little money but with the treasure of Eugenie's love. This is the beginning of Balzac's tremendous story of love and greed, and it would hardly be fair for us to tell you the rest of it and spoil the fun of seeing it for yourself.

In "The Invisible Fear," Miss Stewart is given a role peculiarly suited to her natural talents. The story embraces a plot of mystery, fantasy and adventure, and all are blended into the tale, resulting in a blood-chilling, spine-tingling, and hair-raising tale. The story is a masterpiece of the genre, and is a must for all who love the supernatural.

At the men's meeting in the Y.M.C.A. tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock Boyd P. Doty will deliver a lecture on "Rising Dragon's Teeth." The meeting will be for men only. The speaker comes from Ohio and is prosecuting attorney for the New England division of the anti-saloon league of America.

Mr. Doty in an advance letter says

Newark, N. J. They are said to be the only pictures taken at the convention and are very interesting to the casual observer; so, naturally, they should command the attention of all members of the order. The films are being shown at the Strand theatre.

The pictures show the welcome received by the delegates on their arrival in Newark and the field day which was held, with military drills and other features. Probably the most interesting section of the films is that which shows the national officers, including many past worthy presidents, in characteristic speaking attitudes, with quotations from their addresses thrown on the screen. These quotations covered the most notable features and achievements of the order; its charitable work, its record in the late war and the number of gold stars on the national service flag. One of the officers uttered the slogan "1,000,000 members by 1925."

Previous to the main films, a short feature playlet was shown, demonstrating the benefits to be derived from membership in the order.

The films will be shown at all performances today.

LOCATES LOST UNCLES

Mrs. Thomas Whaley Gratified for Assistance Rendered by The Sun

"All alive, well and prosperous!" This is the happy new year message just received by Mrs. Thomas Whaley of 113 Bellevue street from the great west, announcing that her long quest to locate four uncles—all brothers—reported as "missing" for 18 years, has been successful. It was a welcome message, indeed, for Mrs. Whaley who, sometime ago, appealed to "The Sun" and also a well known magazine for aid in her search.

Mrs. Whaley today gave The Sun credit for splendid assistance. The story of the "missing uncles" published several weeks ago in this newspaper, was copied far and wide. News agencies sent notices all over the country, and one magazine copied it and inserted the story in a "missing person" page.

Today Mrs. Whaley, her face actually shining with happiness as she stood beside her husband in the parlor of their comfortable home on Bellevue street, thanked "The Sun" for publishing the first accurate story of the case, and declared that the mystery that once troubled her is a mystery no longer.

Mr. Whaley had a pretty fair New Year's gift on his side of the house, too. For it seems that the husband, who is one of the best leather workers in the country with many years of experience in handling all grades, has been informed that the position he used to hold down at American Fine & Leather Co., plant in Perry street, is waiting for him as in next Monday morning when the whole staff of the company will be one of the employees laid off sometime ago on account of a temporary shut down and reduction of workmen. So everything considered—not forgetting the fact that they are both Lowell boosters always—the Whaleys are starting 1922 in pretty good spirits in spite of the fact that coal hasn't taken a tumble and it's costing a lot to live.

When The Sun story about the four long lost uncles began to circulate around the country, a magazine happened to find its way to No. 621 Market street, San Diego, Cal. Now that is some distance from the Spindale City, but a certain elderly man with a keen acquaintance among western plainsmen and Alaskan gold miners, happened to live there. Picking up the magazine one evening and glancing through the "Missing" column, his eyes struck a notice that told of the Lowell woman's quest.

The man was E. L. Mack, well known in both California and Alaskan gold fields, and a long-time resident of the north territory. He ran across a man named Frank Cleary up there one time some years ago, who he had relatives in Lowell. Mr. Mack wrote Mrs. Whaley of Bellevue street the following letter:

San Diego, Cal.
Mrs. T. Whaley,
113 Bellevue St., Lowell, Mass.
Dear Madam:—I noticed your query in "Missing Department" of the November issue of your magazine. I know of a Frank Cleary in Alaska. The party in question was the man who discovered Cleary Creek. In the story of a Frank Cleary, I have written that he will express himself forcefully on the prohibition question with particular reference to the work being attempted by Prohibition Enforcement Agent Harold D. Wilson of Boston. He will tell of the handicaps under which this federal agent has to work.

CONGRESS SPENT THIS WEEK ON THE NEWBERRY FIGHT

Senator Walsh Had Denounced the Use of Money to Carry Elections—Confusion Over the Funds for the Maternity Law

Special to The Sun.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 11.—The time of the senate this week has been entirely taken up with the Newberry election case, party ranks being split in both parties, the republicans finding it impossible to hold their forces. In line to vote for the seating of the senator from Michigan. The seating of Newberry has caused confusion among the leaders who felt uncertain of the outcome until the vote was taken. Early in the week Senator Walsh of Massachusetts announced to your correspondent his intention of voting against the seating of Mr. Newberry. "We must throw down the excessive use of money in primary campaigns," said he, "and I cannot feel that the people of the country will feel that under existing circumstances Mr. Newberry is entitled to a seat in the senate." When questioned as to his attitude on the conference treaty as it will be submitted by President Harding at the close of the conference, Senator Lodge replied that he had not determined his course of action and would not feel like making any statement until the treaty was actually before the senate in its final form.

Maternity Law Funds

There is considerable misunderstanding concerning the funds available under the so-called Maternity bill, many persons expecting to see states reap immediate benefit. As a matter of fact no appropriation bill for such expenditures has been passed by congress nor has one yet been submitted. The Maternity bill passed and with it the recommendation of the Interstate Commerce committee authorizing appropriations for the necessary funds was approved by congress, but that was merely an authorization for congress to make appropriations. It is now the duty of the senate to pass the bill. The funds congress must pass another bill after it has been approved by the director of the budget, the president, and has been submitted to the committee on appropriation. All this must be done before any money is available. Congress can appropriate the sum as stated in the bill or it can reduce the amount. It cannot increase it.

Miss Abbot, director of the Children's Bureau, which will be practically in charge of the matter, stated to your correspondent today that she had sent an estimate of the amount needed for state use to the director of the budget and that he would take the matter up for consideration about Jan. 20th. Whether the money will be made available for the current fiscal year or not is available till July 1st is another matter of doubt and one which rests with congress in regard to the appropriation. Under the terms of the bill Massachusetts will receive approximately $40,000, which must be practically matched up by state appropriations before it can become available. As the budget has already been put before congress it will be necessary to introduce a derogatory bill to meet the immediate needs of the Maternity bill, whether it is cut down or gets the full amount authorized by the congress.

Congressman Rogers recently asked the attorney general to investigate the laws of Pennsylvania which enable that state to place a tax on the salary of an attorney who has received a reply from the attorney general stating he would take up the matter with the attorney general of Pennsylvania. Mr. Rogers is convinced the state tax will add to the price of coal used by New England consumers and that such burden will fall most heavily on the small consumer and the householder.

Cape Cod Canal Purchase Commerce

committee, of which Winslow of Massachusetts is chairman, this week gave a hearing to men advocating the purchase of the Cape Cod canal by the United States government, secretary of War Weeks, Secretary of the Navy Denby and Secretary of Commerce Hoover all testified in favor of the project, thus bringing together a notable group pleading for the taking over of the Massachusetts project. They agreed that it would be of inestimable value to the country for commercial, naval or military purposes and that if it were to be constructed under present price conditions the cost would be far and away above the price proposed for the purchase, which is $11,500,000. "There will be no opposition to a favorable committee report coming from southern and western members who are struggling to get money expended along the line of the Mississippi and other big rivers, and apparently want their work done first. It is hoped, however, that the Massachusetts project will win a favorable report by the committee whose New England members are Winslow, chairman, also Burroughs and Merritt.

Tilson Gets Democratic Dope

The first edition of the new Congressional Directory made the error of putting the name of Congressman John Q. Tilson in the democratic list, by using initials which designate members of that party. The error was quickly rectified but Tilson is now reaping the fruit of it just the same. Tilson, a staunch republican and member of the executive committee of the house republican congressional committee, is receiving much "inside" literature from the democratic committee headquarters. He is asked to use his influence in bringing about a big democratic victory and the way to begin is quite plainly pointed out. Tilson is having considerable fun over it, and when the proper time comes it's a safe guess those "How to win" letters will be thrust in the face of some of Tilson's democratic colleagues, with whom he is on the best of personal terms. Moreover, Tilson chuckles and says he is quite willing to take pointers from the democrats if they are worth anything.

White Pine Blister

Senator Keyes of New Hampshire has introduced a bill asking for an appropriation of $125,000 for use in the Eastern States for the extermination of the white pine blister rust, in addition to any other appropriations made for the purpose. During the time between the death and burial of a senator it has been a long-time custom to throw a heavy black pall over his chair in the senate. In reference to the well known desire of Senator Penrose for utmost simplicity the custom was abolished after his death and a simple black ribbon laid across his desk.

The two young Coolidge boys spent the holidays here with the vice president and Mrs. Coolidge. They were frequent visitors to the senate where they sat in the vice president's box in the gallery and "gotten" pointed out the celebrities as they entered the chamber and also explained to them the workings of the senate.

Diseases Rampant in Russia

GENEVA, Jan. 14.—(By the Associated Press)—The Council of the League of Nations today received reports of its special health commission to Russia which declare that while there is not a single case of plague in European Russia, such diseases as typhus, malaria, dysentery and typhoid are rampant there. Four hundred thousand cases of typhus were reported officially in a single month and the disease was said to be spreading throughout Russia. The commission estimates that there have been more than 20,000,000 cases of typhus in Russia in the last three years.

Quarter Century Ago

At this time twenty five years ago there was a hot fight between the political parties over the new charter changes which gave the mayor the power to appoint all heads of departments. It happened that the city council in both branches had a republican majority and Mayor Courtney was a democrat. When he made his appointments, there was a fearful howl. One of the new appointees was Richard Bray, who was appointed superintendent of the lands and buildings department, to succeed Supt. Varnum. Here is part of what the old Sun said of Mr. Bray's assumption of his duties:

"Richard Bray is in charge of the lands and buildings department. This morning he went to the superintendent's office and informed Mr. Varnum that he would take charge of affairs in the department. Mr. Varnum refused to give up because he said there is some question about Mr. Bray's appointment. Mr. Bray stated that his appointment is all right. Then Supt. Varnum instructed all the help to take orders from him and he also proceeded to sign requisitions for supplies for the department. The affairs are now in a very complicated condition and the men in the department are at a loss to know from whom to take orders."

The following week Mr. Varnum was re-elected in concurrence by both branches of the city council and the legal fight was on. The republicans knew they could not win by an appeal to the courts, and hence they brought the matter to the legislature as indicated by the following item from the Sun of that week:

"Yesterday Rep. Richard Dobbins filed a bill to be introduced Monday in the legislature annulling any power of appointment conferred on the mayor by the terms of the recently amended charter and providing that the bill shall take effect upon its passage."

The bill was rushed through and the mayor was deprived of the appointing power which had been placed in his hands by the amended charter.

Good Skating
Quarter century ago there was good skating on the river and at Lakeview. With the people went in large numbers as there was then no Shedd park. The old Sun says: "There was skating for the thousands Saturday and yesterday and the river, Lakeview, Mud Pond, Crystal Lake and Long Meadow were black with people, all kinds of skates being there from the old-time rocker to the long reach Raymonds, and all kinds of people from the man with a patch on his overalls to the new woman with her short skating skirt and dainty skating boots. Long Meadow was the only place not overcrowded because one was obliged to walk there. Lake Massawic attracted by far the largest crowd."

Highland Council, R. A.
Says the old Sun:
"The members of the Highland Council, R. A., installed officers last evening at Highland hall and had a delightful social time in connection with the installation. The celebration possessed a double significance, for aside from the installation, the 200th member was initiated and there were present members from other councils to help celebrate. Several candidates were initiated, bringing the membership to 303. Charles N. Woodward is the lucky 200th. The other new members were J. J. Bancroft, Jr., W. H. Davis, W. H. Seymour, Charles H. Ward, Donald Cammion and Charles S. O'Regan.

Mathews Out Strong
From the old Sun:
"Fifteen hundred young people helped the Mathews celebrate their fifteenth anniversary last night. It was in Huntington hall, the host received his guests and the institute that has lived and prospered during this period must have felt happy in the praise bestowed. The anniversary is always a successful celebration; last night its success knew no bounds. The march was led by Floor Director Patrick F. Kelly and Miss Marie Maguire, followed by Asst. General Manager John J. Gallagher and Miss Annie Delmore; Assistant Floor Director John J. Plinder and Miss Annie Marshall, Chief Aid William A. Smith and Miss Minnie Conroy. Seventy-five couples joined in the grand march."

The Red Men
The following from the old Sun relative to the Red Men will recall a notable event in the history of the local tribe.

"The annual installation of chiefs and warriors of Passaconaway Tribe, Red Men, took place at a largely attended evening, last evening. The following officers were installed: Prophet, Charles H. Kirtledge; sachem, Charles E. Smith; senior sagamore, J. P. Steele; junior sagamore, A. B. Hillard; C. of R., J. A. Bailey; C. of W., Martin Howell; K. of W., E. T. Howard; sump, E. G. Ryan, A. C. Richardson; C. of A., Hugh Francis; G. of F., Milo Clifford; wanees, W. Hall; T. P. Silk; braves, A. W. Garland, Charles C. Clough and C. D. Pollard."

David J. Donaldson, the well known inspector of the police department, is state deputy.

will be conducted from now on with great vigor. The first meeting for organization purposes was held Wednesday in Lexington, when Rev. John Mills Wilson presented the aims of the movement to representatives from East Lexington, Lincoln, Arlington and Medford.

Rev. Arthur C. McGiffert of All Souls' church (Congregational-Unitarian), in an interview at his home, 62 Clifton street, this morning, said the Unitarian campaign just started would not "hit" Lowell, although all the strictly Unitarian churches about Lowell will be affected. He is greatly interested in the membership campaign, however, and believed it will be a splendid thing in every way.

It will be the first time in the history of the Unitarian church that the boards and ministers of this section of New England have been called together to consider the welfare of each and the duty of all. Localized meetings are to be held in the vicinity of Lowell on the following dates:

March 25, First parish, Haverhill; Bedford, Concord, Littleton, Westford, Carlisle, Chelmsford, Lawrence and North Andover.

Among the speakers for the "drive" are William L. Barnard, secretary of the Unitarian Laymen's league, Rev. Maxwell Savage of Worcester, and Rev. Stuart Sherman of the national campaign, who is one of the church extension directors.

PROSECUTION'S MOVE SURPRISE

Gallagher's Name Added When Defense Objects to Certain Testimony

Webster Man's Statements Prove Sensational Part of Trial

BOSTON, Jan. 13.—Daniel J. Gallagher, former United States district attorney here, was joined with District Attorney Joseph C. Pelletier and three others as a co-conspirator in an attempt at extortion in amended charges made today by Attorney J. Weston Allen. The charge was made before the supreme court in connection with its hearing of misconduct charges against Pelletier.

The district attorney and those named with him in the specification under which Gallagher was joined were alleged to have attempted to extort a large sum of money from Mr. and Mrs. Curtis W. Emery and Mrs. Jennie S. Chase, mother of Mrs. Emery, under threat of prosecution in 1915.

Curtis W. Emery, a witness for the prosecution, had testified that he discharged Gallagher as his counsel after Gallagher had recommended that Emery pay $50,000 to Daniel H. Coakley, one of the attorneys named as a co-conspirator, in order to avert indictment. When objection was made to this testimony, the attorney general added Gallagher's name as that of the fifth member of the alleged conspiracy. William J. Corcoran, former district attorney of Middlesex county, Pelletier, Coakley and Jack Paton, a detective had been previously named as members of the conspiracy.

Emery had taken the stand after Victor D. Papineau, first husband of Mrs. Emery, has testified that he retained Coakley to prosecute Emery and his former wife on a statutory charge. The second husband testified that he first learned of threatened prosecution against himself and his wife when Gallagher visited his office in Boston and said he had heard that Coakley had been lodged in the office of District Attorney Corcoran at Cambridge.

Emery employed Gallagher to aid Ralph Robb, his personal attorney he said, in defending the impending prosecution. A few days later Gallagher informed him that Coakley told him the prosecution would be dropped if "Coakley could be satisfied."

Emery testified Gallagher urged him to pay the money saying that "Coakley's crowd are bad people and can twist the facts" in connection with the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Emery to make it appear that a crime had been committed.

Emery said he discharged Gallagher who asked $2500 counsel fees. Gallagher has never pressed the charge, however, he said. The next day he employed Major Thomas L. Walsh, brother of United States Senator David L. Walsh, as his attorney, he testified. At Maj. Walsh's request, he permitted Gallagher to accompany Walsh and himself when they visited Mr. Chase, some time later, Gallagher at that time, according to the witness, advised Mrs. Chase to pay the $50,000 to quash the indictments that were impending. The day after that interview the witness testified, he "settled with Major Walsh" and employed another attorney.

Emery testified that he told Gallagher, "there would be no money payment even if we all go to jail, and not there."

He was arrested on a statutory charge contained in the indictment that was returned by the Middlesex county grand jury, but never was placed on trial, he said, and after a lapse of several months, he received a summons to appear before the Suffolk grand jury.

District Attorney Pelletier conducted his examination at this time, the wit-

BRIEF BUT IMPORTANT WIRE DESPATCHES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—A duty of five cents a pound on short staple raw cotton with 15 cents a pound on the long staple Egyptian cotton which also can be grown in New Mexico and Arizona, was asked of the senate finance committee today by Senator Gooding of Idaho, as spokesman for 25 republican senators from agricultural states.

ATTACHMENTS FILED

An attachment in the sum of $5,000 has been filed at the local registry of deeds office against Henry A. Pepin in an action of tort brought by Vincenzo de Spirito, next friend to Louisa Rossi, who has been admitted by the court to prosecute for the said Louisa Rossi. Another attachment has been filed against John H. Everett in the sum of $2500 in an action of contract brought by William Loxat.

Emery continued. He said he "seemed to be charged with some sort of a conspiracy." That indictment was returned also, but the matter never reached the trial stage. He testified that he learned the charge was not pressed in 1915, two years after the indictment was returned but said he never had been notified of that action.

The witness testified that Gallagher showed him during a conference at a Boston hotel a list of the property of Mrs. Chase which Gallagher informed him he had obtained from Coakley. Emery said it was substantially correct. It listed property worth approximately $200,000 Gallagher told him, he said, that Coakley repeated that he wanted half of it, and that if he didn't get it he would "see that the whole bunch were indicted—and would then get all of the property."

Later Gallagher told him Coakley would accept $50,000. On one occasion he said he received a telephone call from Gallagher to the effect that Coakley had notified him he would give Emery "just 24 hours to pay over the $50,000."

Emery was on the stand when court adjourned for the week end.

Progress in Arms Conference Slows Down

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—(By the Associated Press)—Progress in the armament conference was slowed down today when heads of the British, French, Italian, Japanese and American delegations postponed a scheduled meeting until late in the day to allow the delegates to study the naval limitation treaty as revised by the drafting of reports.

Final action on several matters notably the fortifications question was held up awaiting receipt by the Japanese delegation of instructions from Tokio.

Liquor Ship Under Close Guard

EASTPORT, Me., Jan. 13.—The 70-ton British steamer Harbinger, which put in here Jan. 1 for water and stores, with 300 cases of liquor in her hold, left today to continue her voyage to Nassau from St. John. The coast guard cutter Ossipee left at the same time to keep the little craft under surveillance until she passes beyond the first naval district, when, it is expected, another cutter will take up the convoy duty. The Harbinger has been under United States customs guard since arrival here. Her departure had been delayed by the resignation of the master. His successor is William Cobham.

NOMINATIONS ARE TABLED

City Council Rejects More Names Sent Down by Mayor Brown

Body Refuses to Confirm Francis A. Warnock and
Edward J. Mulry

The city council last night again exercised its right to reject any and all nominations presented by the mayor when it overwhelmingly voted against confirmation of the names of Francis A. Warnock for superintendent of public buildings and Edward J. Mulry for superintendent of charities.

The vote on former Commissioner Warnock's name found only two city council members in his favor, Messrs. Chadwick and Morarty, while the following six members voted against his nomination: Messrs. Adams, Bagley, Cameron, Chadwick, Chretien and Genest.

Mayor George H. Brown, who remained in his office with City Solicitor Edward J. Tierney during the session, showed his disapproval of the action of the council when he asked for a conference with President Patrick J. Bagley and through him announced to the council that he would not send down any more nominations unless he received assurance that some consideration would immediately follow.

The council members voted to stick to their usual course of voting to lay upon the table for further investigation and then the mayor announced that he would appear before the council in person with another nomination. After a wait of five minutes, his honor sent in word that he had changed his mind and would not appear.

President Bagley called the council to order at 8:23. The roll call showed all council members present with the exception of Mr. Sullivan. President Bagley announced that Councilor Sullivan had been detained, but would come in before the meeting adjourned. He entered the chamber at 8:30 o'clock.

President Bagley read the order authorizing the borrowing of $2,000,000 in anticipation of revenue. Adoption was unanimous.

Councilor McMenamin moved that the nomination of Frank A. Warnock for superintendent of public buildings be taken from the table. It carried.

On a roll call Mr. Warnock failed for confirmation by an adverse vote of 13 to 2. Councilors Chadwick and Morarty being the only two to vote "yes."

Councilor McMenamin's motion to take the nomination of Edward J. Mulry for superintendent of charities was carried and the council proceeded to a roll call.

Mr. Mulry failed to receive confirmation by a vote of 9 to 6.

The council members voting for confirmation were Messrs. Adams, Bagley, Cameron, Chadwick, Chretien and Genest.

Councilor Gallagher moved that the president appoint a committee of three to fix the salaries of administrative officers for the year 1922. It was passed unanimously.

President Bagley then appointed Councilors Gallagher, Cameron and Genest.

The city messenger was sent to the mayor to inquire whether his honor desired to send any nominations to the council, and as he expressed a desire to confer with President Bagley the council voted a recess of ten minutes.

At the end of the recess period President Bagley stated that he had been in conference with the mayor and that the latter had told him that he would not send any more nominations to the council unless he was assured they would receive consideration at once.

In reply the council voted unanimously not to take immediate action on any nomination presented to it, but rather to adhere to its usual procedure of tabling all nominations for investigation and consideration.

When this attitude was transmitted to the mayor, his honor sent word back that he would appear before the council in person with a nomination.

Lowell Man Victim of Explosion at His Home in Liberty Street

Victim of a most unusual explosion while endeavoring to separate parts of an old blanching press in the cellar of his home at 233 Liberty street, about 6 o'clock last evening, Edward D. Clark, 53 years old, a former foundry worker, died about ten hours later as the result of a badly crushed chest, broken ribs and abrasions of the lungs. Medical Examiner Thomas B. Smith said it was the first accident of its kind he had ever investigated.

Mr. Clark had been attempting to separate the head from the main portion of an old blanching press which he had placed the head part in a furnace in an effort to loosen it. It is supposed that the head and the lower part of the press, it is believed that the head was hollow so that when the air inside the furnace escaped, it exploded with terrific effect, sending the red hot iron fragments in all directions. The noise of the exploding metal aroused the household, and the cellar was filled with smoke and dust. Mr. Clark was found lying some distance from the furnace, with the shattered iron post across his body. He failed to recover consciousness.

The accident victim had been a resident of Lowell more than 50 years, and Mrs. Clark observed their 50th wedding anniversary about seven years ago. Besides his wife, Rebecca B. Clark leaves two children, Mrs. Henry A. Mason of Brookline and Arthur A. Clark of this city. Deceased was a member of Highland-Verdant lodge and Middlesex-Chevalier lodge, K. of P.

F. of St. George at a recent meeting of the organization: Emma Morris, president; Jane A. Pearson, vice president; Ann Hinch, recording secretary; Sarah L. Hirtwistle, financial secretary; Hannah M. O'Connell, treasurer; Sarah Mitchell, chaplain; Gertrude Edwards, first conductor; Christina Adams, assistant conductor; Jennie Alexander, inside guard; Charlotte Knox, trustee for 15 months.

The spectators numbered less than at any previous meeting, although all available chairs were occupied.

The present hold-over incumbents of the office of superintendent of public buildings, Martin Conley and Frank Connor, were in the corridor at the rear of the chamber when the council adjourned. Mr. Conley seemed depressed after the meeting.

There was a rumor in the chamber that the mayor would send down the name of Donald Gray for the position of city messenger, but there was "nothing doing."

It was suggested to President Bagley that he make an effort to obtain Mayor Hall for the position of city messenger, on the evening of the 20th, the councilors feeling that the chamber is not large enough to accommodate the expected crowd. Frank Stearns added the thought that the high school drill hall might be secured.

On motion of Councilor McMenamin the committee on salaries for administrative officers of departments was named by President Bagley as Councilors McMenamin and Mr. Adams.

Councilor Stearns came into the chamber alone at 7:55 o'clock and occupied his chair in seclusion until the rest of his conferees entered three-quarters of an hour later.

"What are they doing out there in the ante-room, Mr. Stearns?" someone asked the councillor from Ward 1. "I am sure I do not know," came his immediate reply.

The election of a city auditor was another rumored action that did not transpire last night.

City Solicitor Tierney will supply a copy of the mayor's specifications on his proposal of Saint, Welch to each member of the council. Copies of the new ordinance relative to an employment bureau also will be available.

FACES SERIOUS CHARGES

Another Alleged Assault of Serious Nature Lodged Against Gordon Pickering

Gordon L. Pickering, of Butterfield street, brought to court Tuesday on two charges, one serious, count high, and the other less so, and in alleged original difficulties today when he was arraigned before Judge Bright on a third complaint alleging a serious assault committed, the police say, on a girl under 16 years of age last July 15 in this city. This latter warrant was obtained by Patrolman A. J. Conroy of the police, and it is alleged that the prosecution strongly urged the court to order a speedy trial, the justice at the request of the defense, granted a further continuance to Jan. 27. Bail on the new charge Judge Bright fixed at $1000, thereby bringing the total amount of surety on the defendant on the three complaints to $1200. On the original charge of an alleged assault on a young woman last Monday evening bail had been set at $1200 and on the complaint of operating a motor vehicle without a license at $200.

Tuesday the case at the request of counsel was put over to today. Pickering, pleading not guilty to both allegations. When the new charge was read today the attorneys for the defendant, Messrs. J. Henry Gilbride and Jeremiah O'Sullivan, asked a continuance of about two weeks, basing their claims on the fact that new counsel, Mr. O'Sullivan, had entered into the case Tuesday and on lack of knowledge of facts concerning the new allegation.

Attorney J. P. Donahue, for the prosecution, asked for a speedy trial, but the court stated he believed that inasmuch as a new complaint of such a serious nature had been brought, the defense ought to have time to prepare the case.

Pickering, a young man in the early twenties, was arrested last Monday evening by Sgt. Winn and Patrolmen Kivian, Conroy and O'Sullivan after the police had been summoned to a spot in Clark road where neighbors in a telephone message to headquarters reported a girl in a state of auto-mobility. Pickering was brought to court for failure to have an automobile license in his possession and for attempted assault of a serious nature on the young woman, whose identity the police would not divulge.

Since that time Patrolman Conroy had had the case in hand and investigation brought to light this week an assault of serious nature, alleged by the authorities to have been committed on a girl under 16 years of age in Lowell last July 15.

At the close of the court session today, shortly before noon, Pickering had not yet been bailed out and a new charge, but arrangements were being made to obtain the $1000 surety.

A large gathering of young people enjoyed the diversified program of entertainment, with general dancing among the attractions. The program was as follows: Organ playing, selections, Dally's orchestra; remarks, President Thomas Landers; song, James F. Donnelly; song, James Fahy; song, Frank Boyle; burk and wing dance; Peter Coleman; song, James McManus; remarks, Richard Brabook Walsh; Fred Harvey and Hon. John J. Pickering. On January 13, 1876, the Lowell Reform club was organized in old Music hall on Dutton street. Its object was the promotion of temperance, and the members were in no way obligated politically or religiously. In the years that followed the growth and prosperity of the organization caused its removal to the old Wells block in Merrimack street and later to the McCarthy block in Palmer street. The request of the late Eli W. Hoyt made possible the occupancy of the present quarters in Central street, where about 150 active members carry on the good work started 46 years ago.

TRANSPORT REACHES PORT

1000 Doughboys Learn for First Time That Ship Was in Great Danger at Sea

"Not a Crap Game Stopped," Was Smiling Comment of Capt. Reppa

NEW YORK, Jan. 14 (by the Associated Press).—A thousand doughboys returning today from Germany on the transport Crook learned for the first time that their ship had sprung a leak last Tuesday and had been in danger during great gales that swept the North Atlantic.

"Not a crap game stopped" was the smiling comment of Captain Reppa, as the Crook was being lashed to her pier at the transport base in Brooklyn. The transport St. Althol, which had been dispatched to her assistance, accompanied her up the bay.

The doughboys eagerly scanned the newspapers giving accounts of the plight of the Crook, and then remarked that their ship had been in the line of 62 battles of American soldiers which were transported from French cemeteries for reinforcement in their native soil.

The Crook's skipper was inclined to belittle the experience. He said some of the rivets had given out, causing the seams to open, but that at no time was the ship in danger.

In addition to the 963 enlisted men and 50 casuals, the Crook brought 11 German brides and eight babies. Most of the enlisted men had been engaged in policing the Rhine. Many of them had seen their fighting in the war and they had been sent to various parts of the country for demobilization.

DEDICATORY EXERCISES

Formal dedicatory exercises at the square recently renamed for Thomas F. Mann, one of the Lowell boys who gave his life in the nation's service during the late war, are being planned by the local post of the American Legion. It is reported that the plans for the dedication may be disclosed in the near future.

As this square is in the district known as the South End, and as the features of the square are in the creation of a memorial tablet in a prominent spot, bearing the names of the boys in that section who lost their lives in the world war, no dedication plan to this end has yet been outlined, but it is known that a movement is being made to gain momentum in the near future.

BALLOTS FOR COMMERCE

CHAMBER DIRECTORS

BalLOTS were sent out yesterday by the chamber of commerce to receive nominations for seven directors who will serve on the board of directors for the coming year. In the primary the ballots must be marked and returned to the chamber not later than 5 p. m. on Tuesday night, the time set for the closing of the polls.

While the ballots call for voting on only seven members, the highest 11 men will be submitted to the members at the final election which will be held in a short while.

According to each ballot is a revised list of the members who are eligible to vote and upon whom they may be voted. The elections commission will consist of Fred A. Snow, Charles F. Langley, George Nash, Leon D. Towns, Russell M. Fox, B. S. Foxner, John G. Parker, L. F. Fields, Roland Black, Albert J. Ludwig, Paul H. Hartford and Augustus Serra.

Responses to the invitations sent out by the chamber for the formation of an "Ad" club have been many. At least 30 have signified their intentions of being present at the supper which takes place next Wednesday night.

tify the weapon now, he said.

Several pieces of colored glass and a piece of gilt frame, alleged by the government to be parts of an antique mirror owned by Loud and which were found near his abandoned automobile, were offered in evidence.

John P. Pacey, counsel for Loud, admitted without requiring proof, that Loud was an excellent shot with a single action revolver. The admission was made when the government called Birnie Pierce, Atlantic, Mass., to testify as to Loud's familiarity with weapons and ability to use them.

Former State Treasurer Fred J.
Burrell testified briefly in corroboration of testimony by Wakefield police officers, given earlier in the trial, that they attempted to stop an automobile on Upham street, between Melrose and Saugus streets on the night Preston was killed. Burrell testified that he was riding in the automobile and went into full speed when one of three men—standing beside road—pointed a gun toward the car and demanded that he stop. He did not know, he said, whether they were police officers or robbers. He notified the police of the occurrence a little later when he reached Melrose.

Freight Train Caboose in Bad Jam Early This Morn- ing—Misplaced Switch Responsible for Freight Wreck—Car of Cotton and Oil Tankers in Mixup

Soundly sleeping on a comfortable warm bunk in "buggy" No. 500,053, Brakeman Bill Wolensky, dreaming of other days and times, got one of his biggest thrills this morning about 3:55 o'clock, when his temporary sleeping car of wood construction but good, stout, steel underplating, was suddenly bumped and pushed off the iron down in the New Haven yards.

Bill's sleep disturbance was none other than "buggy" No. 502,214, a caboose of the all-wood variety that has made its last little run through the local but trainmen say he was lucky to get out of it as well as he did.

A misplaced switch choked off a nice little freight car shooting exhibition on the part of a busy engineer in the N.Y.N.H.&H. railroad yards. As a result, a hurry-up call had to be sent for the Taunton wrecking crew to untangle two badly damaged "buggies" and fix up the ends of a couple of freight cars that also figured in the wreck that sprawled all over three tracks and cut off all freight transfer work in that immediate territory until early this afternoon.

The damage to the freight cabooses and freight cars will amount to several thousand dollars. One caboose, 502,214, was so badly smashed that it will have to be carted away as bludding wood for distribution among the shanties along the line where the gate-tenders hang out. The other "buggy" is of steel construction, apparently, and escaped demolition, although badly damaged. It was a case of two heavy tank cars loaded with Texaco fuel oil against two "buggies" with the "buggies" in the middle and getting crushed with considerable force.

Agent Patrick L. Shea of the New Haven yards was called out early, and was on the job at the morning. He had much to do in getting the forces up from Taunton and out to the local yards where the wreck was spattered around. It appears that the first train in this morning from New Bedford was "extra" No. 445 in charge of Conductor Melvin Cheney. This reached the Lowell yards about 2:25 a. m. At 3:25 in came No. 462, Conductor J. J. Walsh, from New York. No. 462 was responsible for the little wreck. Cheney had got off his "line" and was taking things easy.

When extra 462 arrived, there were plenty of tracks, so an attempt was made to dispose of the "buggy" as usual, but this time on another track than the one generally used. As a result of a switch working improperly, the track wasn't "hit," and as the "buggy" was being pushed along behind a swiftly moving engine with two heavy tank yards. Bill landed on his head in one corner of the car just as the other end came in and a shower of splinters spread over the brakeman's erstwhile boudoir. It was a rude awakening.

HUMANE SOCIETY MAKES ANNUAL REPORT

The annual report of the Lowell Humane society has been compiled by Agent C. P. Richardson and contains an interesting resume of the work done by this organization during the 1921 year. The report shows the society was kept pretty busy during the 12 months which ended on Dec. 31, and while not much more work was done in these 12 months than in the previous 12, the agent and his assistants were kept on the go all of the time. It was impossible to handle any more cases than were disposed of.

Human and animal cases of every description passed through the society's hands. There was a noticeable decrease in the number of horse cases handled. Agent Richardson attributes this to the fact that motor vehicles are fast taking the place of horses and doing their work.

One small item of expense, of the many charged to the society, is that of the gas box used for extermination of animals. It was possible to handle only one case of a dog in the year. The society furnishes its services free in these cases, but would be glad to have all who can afford it, contribute to the cost of the gas.

The society wishes to thank all who have helped in the work, and in the children's home, St. Peter's orphanage, Ayer home, Lowell Guild, Social Service League and the Lowell police.

Harry Baker, an ex-serviceman, has assisted Agent Richardson in the work, having had charge of the animal department. The report:

Continued

Continued (Press)—The Anglo-Irish treaty creating the Irish Free State, was unanimously ratified today by the South Ireland parliament.

A provisional government was constituted, comprising Michael Collins, William Cosgrave, Eamon J. Duggan, P. J. Hogan, Finian Lynch, Joseph McGrath, Prof. John MacNeill, and Kevin O'Higgins.

The parliament met under clauses 17 and 18 of the Anglo-Irish treaty, which made the members of the southern Irish parliament elected under the government of Ireland act of 1920 the body which should ratify the treaty and take measures for constituting a provisional government.

The meeting was held in the oak room of the Mansion House. The entire list of 128 members, including the four unionists elected for Trinity college, had been summoned, but only those who favored the treaty attended.

The agenda contained a resolution calling for ratification of the treaty and further resolutions appointing eight ministers to comprise the provisional governing body. The list, which was duly ratified by the meeting is identical with the list of the ministers of the Dail Eireann, with the addition of Professor John MacNeill, speaker of the Dail, and Finian Lynch, who was one of the secretaries of the London delegation.

The list of ministers does not include Arthur Griffith, president of the Dail nor George Gavan Duffy, the Dail's minister of foreign affairs, presumably because foreign affairs, although they will be within the competence of the free state when constituted, will not be formally handled by the provisional transitional government.

Plan General Election

The brief meeting of the southern parliament members was presided over by William Dorris of Cork City. The chairman announced that when the transitional period was completed, the Dail Eireann would decree a general election, enabling the people to pronounce on a form of constitution and elect representatives to the parliament of the nation.

The roll call established the fact that not one member of Mr. de Valera's party was present. The four Trinity college members all attended. Pierce Heasly of Kerry formally moved the resolution approving the treaty, with Joseph McBride of Mayo, brother of Major John McBride, who was executed after the Easter week uprising in 1916, seconding the motion.

Griffith Outlines Policy

The resolution proposing the election of ministers was passed without dissent. Arthur Griffith, president of the Dail Eireann, addressing the meeting, said he thought it desirable to make definite what the position was of the provisional government. The Dail Eireann, he explained, would remain in existence until the treaty's terms were carried out, when general elections would be called. The provisional government, he said, would need and deserve the support of every good Irishman. Its task would be heavy, and it would have many difficulties from the outset, but it would carry through, he said.

To Guarantee Fair Play

Mr. Griffith said he was sure the provisional government would make no distinction between Irishmen. Every guarantee would be given for fair play all around. They were starting a new era in this country, he said, and desired that the old differences be banished forever. New differences must arise in every community, but they would arise as differences.

Schooner Beached in Low Tide

LUNenburg, N. S., Jan. 14.—The schooner J. Duffy, participant in the recent Nova Scotia fishing schooner races, was beached today, filled with water after she had struck a bar at the mouth of La Have river. The lowest tide in several years was responsible for the mishap, the skipper said.

Resignations of Science Trustees Accepted

BOSTON, Jan. 14.—The supreme court today issued an interlocutory decree accepting the resignations of Herbert W. Eastman and Paul A. Harvey as trustees of the Christian Science Publishing Society. The decree was made effective on Nov. 25, 1921, the date on which the trustees placed their resignations in the hands of the court. It leaves the society without any trustee, the court having recently upheld the Mother Church directors' removal of Lamont Rowlands.

Lost Petition of Anti-Prohibitionists

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 14.—Loss by United States Senator Fredlinghuysen of a petition of 15,000 anti-prohibitionists calling on New Jersey's senators and representatives to work for modification of the Volstead enforcement act, drew a charge from William R. Stewart, president of the Anti-Dry League of New Jersey today that the senator either had "dishonestly suppressed" the petition or was guilty of such carelessness as rendered him "unworthy to be a member of the United States senate." The petition demanded modification of the Volstead act so as to permit the sale of light wines and beer.

Entire Armenian Population to Leave

GENEVA, Jan. 14.—(By the Associated Press)—Paul Hymann, president of the council of the League of Nations, presented to the council today a telegram which Cardinal Mercier, primate of Belgium, had received from the Protestant community and the Armenian Catholic patriarchate of Constantinople, stating that the entire Armenian population had decided to evacuate the country. The telegram urgently appealed for vessels to transport 120,000 persons.

ferences between Irishmen belonging to one state.

Mr. Griffith added it would be the business of the provisional government to see that all the Irish prisoners, arrested and incarcerated in connection with the recent hostilities, were restored to liberty.

Prof. Thrift of Trinity college, said that as representative of men who had held different opinions in the past, from those of the present he accepted Mr. Griffith's statement in the spirit in which it was offered and would do his best to make the measures successful.

The members signed the roll and the meeting was concluded.

cars filled with oil in between, the momentum was some momentum when the "buggy" left the combination and tried to bounce the standing caboose off the rails. The crash woke up the neighborhood.

The damage included a badly spotted end of a freight car loaded with cotton for Lowell mills. The tank car listed as "S.T.C.N. 1033" had one end tipped over, the running board is supposed to be. Another "S.L. & S.T. 41272" was also damaged. The caboose of Walsh's train was pretty badly smashed up after being tossed from the rails, crumpling when the impact came like a paper box.

The little smashup occurred within a short distance of the Lincoln street bridge and just off the Maple street freight yard territory.

"You can't lay that to Friday (the 13th, anyhow)," said Wolensky to Walsh, when he crawled out of the wrecked caboose this morning. "He didn't get a scratch, but the bounce when the flying 'buggy' hit his bed chamber is on the won't-happen-again list for 1911.

and when the alleged assailant made the brothers the targets of his attack. An sudden did the villain spring from behind and stab the two men that it was impossible for either to offer resistance or force a struggle. Yacobi, as he saw, the assailant brandish a dagger, ran away, but according to his story to the police stated he was able to identify the man with the weapon as Conroy, as he Yacobi fled. Hunted around several times to see if he was being pursued. The Nain boys on the ground unconscious and bleeding profusely the alleged attack or threw the dagger to the side of a pathway and ran away.

The wounded men were removed to the hospital in the ambulance. Immediately called, the police secured the district for the man suspected of having committed the deed but as yet have failed to uncover his hiding place. The dagger used by the assailant was recovered shortly after by patrolmen. Meagre information received by the police from the men at the hospital revealed the fact that Conroy, the alleged assailant, was known to them, the three having worked together some years ago. However, there never were any differences between them, they said, and knew of no reason warranting the attack.

Hasan Conroy, the police made known today, is widely known in this city and in Lawrence, where he recently made his residence under the name of Arthur George. The following description of him maintained by the authorities has been furnished to the police forces of nearby cities and towns border all the patrolmen on duty in Lowell: Age, 35 years, weight, 135 pounds, height, 5 feet, 4 inches, sallow complexion, curly hair, and wore a blue suit, with no overcoat.

Readings and solos were given by prominent local elocutionists and singers and music was furnished by the Mandolin club of the League of Catholic Women. The table was in charge of Mrs. D. P. Henry, Mrs. James Flood, Mrs. R. Donoghue, Mrs. Hugh C. McCosker and Mrs. George Harris.

Tea was served under the auspices of the hospital committee under the leadership of Mrs. Elizabeth Kerwin. Her assistants were: Mrs. William P. Lawler, Mrs. James Gookin, Mrs. R. During the afternoon this new maternity branch of the hospital was open for inspection of the ladies, who found the section all that might be expected in an up-to-date hospital.

Palmer's new squad will not succeed the old in any way. It simply will work along slightly different lines, but always in close touch with Wynn's men."

The decision to invite Field Agent Wilson to come to the city has been contemplated for some time and a week ago Mayor Brown announced that he had taken important steps toward a full enforcement of the prohibition laws, without stating the exact nature of the steps taken.

Recently a letter was written to Mr. Wilson, for yesterday afternoon the following reply was received:

Jan. 11, 1922.

Sir, George H. Brown, Mayor of Lowell, City Hall, Lowell, Mass., Dear Mr. Brown—Your favor of the 6th relative to conditions in Lowell has been brought to my attention. I am very much pleased at your attitude relative to the liquor problem in Lowell and you may rest assured that you will receive every co-operation from this office. I shall go to Lowell at the very earliest possible moment for a conference with you and shall be glad to go into every detail. I think it will be possible for me to come on either Thursday or Friday of this week and if you will phone me at the office stating when such a conference would be convenient for you, we can arrange for a satisfactory time.

It is a pleasure to find a mayor so willing to go to the mat in this business. Again thanking you for your courteous letter, I am

Very truly yours,
HAROLD D. WILSON.

SLIGHT INCREASE IN DEATH RATE

The city's death rate showed a slight increase this week over the two previous weeks. Deaths reported to the board of health this week number 38, compared with 36 last week and 26 the week previous.

There were 12 deaths this week under five years, and nine under one year. As is usual at this time of year, deaths caused by pneumonia showed an increase, there being seven reported. Ten cases of diphtheria were reported to the board.

FIRST STREET EXTENSION

The state board of public works is very anxious to take up the matter of the new boulevard extension in First street with the board of public works at the earliest possible moment. City Engineer Kearney will communicate with the state board at once a conference between the two will be arranged as soon convenient.

WESTERN COLLEGES LEAD

Have Largest Number of Students According to Respective Populations

CHICAGO, Jan. 14.—Oregon, Iowa and Utah have the largest number of students in college, according to their prospective populations and Tennessee has the lowest proportion, with Arkansas and New Mexico closely following Tennessee, Dr. George F. Zook of the United States bureau of education told the Association of American colleges here today. Dr. Zook stated that he obtained this information from statistics compiled for the last full college year of 1920-1921.

"The statistics also reveal that the western states of California, Oregon and Utah take care of a larger proportion of their students in their own colleges and universities than any other states," continued Dr. Zook. "New Jersey brings up the rear with only 18 per cent. of her students in New Jersey institutions, and Connecticut follows with 35.6 per cent."

"On the other hand, the eastern states of New Hampshire, Connecticut, Maryland, New Jersey and Massachusetts contain the institutions that draw most powerfully from other states. Indeed the higher institutions in these states are training a larger number of non-residents than they are of citizens of their respective states."

Dr. Zook also announced that the attendance at universities, colleges, and professional schools last year reached 450,000, which is a gain of 26 per cent. over the attendance in the year of 1917-18.

Accurate figures of foreign students in American colleges and universities were also supplied by Dr. Zook, the total being 6900. China leads with 1443 students, and Canada is second with 1254. Other countries are as follows: Japan, 526; South American countries, 583; Russia, 250; India 235.

Water, Heat and Light From Single Well

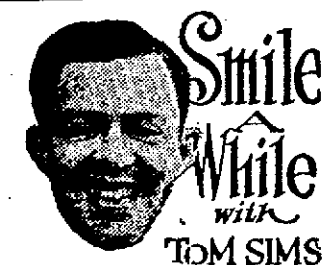

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 14.—Water, heat and light from a single well less than 250 feet deep, has made John Schaeffer, an Allegheny county farmer, envied by his neighbors. When Schaeffer hired drillers to sink the well, he was after water. The workmen tapped a considerable pocket of gas and a gas pipe was run down beside the water pipe. The gas has continued to flow steadily.

Schooner Abandoned at Sea

BOSTON, Jan. 14.—The schooner, James M. W. Hall on a voyage from Charleston, S. C., for New York, was abandoned at sea in a waterlogged condition at midnight, according to radio messages received here today. The messages came from the steamer West Canon, which reported that she had taken off the schooner's crew. The West Canon is bound for New York from Manila and Asiatic port. The James M. W. Hall a vessel of 500 tons, was built at Phippsburg, Me., and was owned at this port. She was under command of Captain B. M. Cole.

Declares Columbus Born in Portugal

LISBON, Jan. 14.—(By the Associated Press)—Christopher Columbus, discoverer of America, was born in Portugal, the Portuguese Academy of Sciences was told yesterday by Patrocinio Ribeiro, a member. It has been an historically accepted fact that Columbus was born in Genoa, Italy. The statement of Senor Ribeiro is especially interesting as coming on the heels of an announcement by the Rt. Rev. Mgr. Ray Soto upon his arrival in New York recently, that Columbus was a Jew. The prelate said that this was proved by documents discovered at the home of ancestors of Columbus in Spain. He said Columbus hid the fact that he was a Jew because of the deportation of people of that race from Spain by Ferdinand and Isabella.

NORMAL SCHOOL
LITERARY CLUB

The students anticipate the early issuance of the annual catalogue, which shows an enrollment of nearly 200 on the student list. The catalogue is now being printed.

An address by Miss Helen Hogan, of the oral English department was delivered yesterday before the students of the leading high school. Miss Hogan's topic was "The Advantages of a Normal School Education." Mr. Frank W. Wright, director of the state department of education was a visitor at the school a short time ago. He witnessed a demonstration in "senior I," of various phases of the project method, by students who, under the direction of Miss Emma Ramsay, have done some work in practice teaching.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS
PLANS "STAG" PARTY

The mid-winter "stag" party of Bishop Delany assembly, Fourth Degree, Knights of Columbus, on Tuesday evening next promises to be a pronounced success, if the reports read at the meeting of the committee on arrangements last evening can be taken as a criterion. These stag parties are quite a big noise with the assembly now, and the initial event held in November was such a success that there was an insistent demand for another of the same variety. The record set by Sir Knight Thomas J. O'Donnell and his committee in the first affair will be hard to surpass, but it appears to be the consensus of opinion that the November affair will have to take second place if all the plans of the new committee mature.

There were most encouraging reports relative to the various happy features of the event, and there appeared to be a strong opinion that the most cards returned indicated the biggest crowd ever. The committee on menu reported an excellent supper on the tapis, and the committee on entertainment promised an entertainment of rare excellence, diversified and satisfying in every particular. Supper will be served at 8:30, with Sir Knight Edward F. Slattery, Jr., as master of ceremonies and general director. The committee in charge consists of Sir Knights William H. Gallagher, P.M., Dr. R. J. Gendreau, Arthur J. O'Neill, Joseph A. Desrosiers, Joseph A. Handley, Daniel Powers, Martin E. Clough, Michael Keefe, Geo. H. Delany, Thomas J. Tobin, Jr., Duane Mullin and Edward F. Slattery, Jr.

The committee in charge of the dinner and dance of the assembly reports plans going along quite acceptably, and will discuss further arrangements Monday evening.

Minstrel Show

A rehearsal of the minstrel show troupe of the council will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. The show will be given on Jan. 27th.

Adventures of the Twins

A QUARREL.

"NOW TELL ME WHAT THE TROUBLE IS," SAID THE FAIRY QUEEN.

"Now tell me what the trouble is about," said the Fairy Queen to the two bawling looking kids. Nancy, Nick and Bessie had taken seats in the front row of the courtroom and they could hear and see everything that went on. "They have been fighting again," your highness," said the policeman, coming forward and making a stiff bow. "It's the old trouble again. They've been jealous of each other these hundred years and they are getting worse instead of better." The Fairy Queen turned her kind eyes reprovingly on the offenders. "Tut, tut, tut," she said. "This will never do! Aren't you both ashamed of yourselves? I keep this part of my kingdom, the Land-Of-Up-In-The-Air, just to make you happy and here you are acting like sillies. "Dear only knows, when you kids get away from the strings 'n' things that tie you to earth, you make a bee-line for the sky as quick as you know how. Why do you come if you cannot be happy?" she asked severely. "I would be happy if I wasn't for this fellow," said the first kid. "He knows I am the most important, but he won't say so." "Why I've been written about in all the history books down on the earth and the children study about me." "I'm the kid that carried the cord that pulled the rope that drew the cable that started the bridge—" "Oh, goodness!" cried the second kid. "We've heard it a million times!" "Then he turned to the Fairy Queen. "As for me, your majesty, I am Benjamin Franklin's silk kite," he said. "I went up into the clouds during a storm and discovered electricity." And he held himself so straight that he nearly fell over backwards. The Twins wondered how the Fairy Queen was going to decide the question. But Bessie said to wait. (To Be Continued.)

New Style for Men's Clothing

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Men's clothing during the coming year will be, for the most part, sober in its general effects, but it will reflect something of the atmosphere of the ballroom. The National Association of Retail Clothiers and the International Association of Clothing Designers, in session here, have gleaned this information through questionnaires received from all over the country. "Trousers will be designed along straighter lines, with larger knees and wider bottoms," said a statement. "The spirit of the times shows a trend toward the adoption by men of all ages of styles typical of and accepted by the younger generation."

With the Old Time Diamond Heroes

Michael H. Powers, who did good work for the Athletics in 1908, was one of the greatest receivers in the business. He was with that team from the time it entered the American league in 1900 until May of 1909 when he died in Philadelphia.

Powers was not only a great player but owing to his sterling character he was a universal favorite among the fans and the players. Powers' high qualities of sincerity, integrity and true comradeship. He was the soul of honor. To attain success by questionable means was beneath him and apart from his nature.

The club management and his associates on the field could but improve by his example. Powers' character was never misplaced or betrayed. Year in and year out he was the same earnest worker, faithfully devoted to duty. Enemies he had none, and wherever he went he brought friends to him who were his friends to the end.

When Powers passed away someone in Philadelphia wrote these lines about him:

"Old Cross Mike"

You fans all know of Red Cross Mike who played the game to win. Out always, in on the square and fought through thick and thin.

There never was a whiter man than he. Who kindly cheered his comrades more and fixed an ailing mate. When someone met a liner and was struggling hard to win, Of all who helped the stricken man "Doc" Powers first was there.

"Work hard, old man, work hard," said Mike, when things were going ill; And by his true and steady work, he'd pull his team uphill.

To victory, but the fans cheered "Doc" with all their might. He'd always give the credit to a team. Calm in the midst of tumult, when the shouting split the air, Doing his best in every play "Doc" Powers still was there.

We'll have another catcher who will play in Powers' place; We'll have another catcher who will play in Powers' place. But "Doc" has gone and passed beyond the umpire's strident call; No more he'll raise to duty when he hears the words "play ball!" But though he's left a team to mourn and miss his kindly air, Within the hearts of countless friends his memory will be there.

Monday—Tip O'Neill.

Today's Sport Angle

Do they ever come back?

Mr. Suzanne Lenglen says it is possible in tennis, and she intends to prove it.

Mr. Lenglen will be remembered as the tennis champion who came to this country and "blowed" it.

The coming of the French star to the States was the most widely heralded tennis event in years.

Advances made in American tennis enthusiasts believe that in Mr. Lenglen they were to see the future of tennis.

Records and press agents made her stand out as the superwoman of the tennis world. Newspapers featured stories by her, telling how it was possible to play tennis a little better than it had ever been played before.

Then came the match with the American champion, Molla Barmstetter Mallory, and the big explosion. After a couple of games, the French player, in which the French star was hopelessly outplayed, if not outplayed, she apparently became ill and was forced to default.

LOWELL TRIMS WHALERS IN FAST GAME, 7 TO 6

In one of the fastest games of the season the Lowell poloists won over the Whalers from New Bedford before an enthusiastic crowd at the Crescent Club last night, the score being 7 to 6.

In the early stages of play Lowell had the advantage, but a brilliant finish by the Whalers brought them within one point of creating a tie and gave Lowell a score, which was relieved by the final blast of the horn.

"With Bill" Duggan was out to win and he called upon his entire team to do so. He led them to a dash up and down the field and only for wonderful defensive play by Quigley, Horeborn and Blount, the score might have been a lot different. Duggan gave the locals a very hard evening, but they proved equal to the task and kept the high scoring Whaler down to two goals.

Alexander, Davies and Quigley, worked their combination game to perfection. Davies scored three of Lowell's goals, while Alex and Quigley each landing a brace.

Two "break" goals went into the cage, one by New Bedford that those near the cage declared outruled the side, being allowed, but the other by Lowell which did penetrate through a broken wire on the side being ruled out. Objections were raised to both rulings by referee Finnell, but he refused to change his decisions.

Lowell got away in a fine start when Alex kicked one in 2:50 and Alexander and Quigley put two more in 3:10 and 3:20. The goal for New Bedford and the period ended 2 to 1. In the second Duggan created a tie but a sequence of three by Davies, Alexander and Quigley put Lowell out in front again. Wiley came through for New Bedford by kicking one out of the cage, but Quigley soon nullified it, and just before the horn sounded Wiley scored again. The count stood Lowell 4, New Bedford 4. The final round was a hammer with both teams traveling at a blistering pace. Duggan kicked one for New Bedford. Davies followed with one, and Wiley came to bat with the grand finale. The final score: Lowell 7, New Bedford 6.

GAMBLERS ARRAIGNED IN DISTRICT COURT

Judge Wright in district court today imposed a fine of $20 on Joseph White, said by the police to be the promoter of a gambling resort at 34 South Street, and of $5 each on six other men who were said to have been playing cards with White in his premises last night. All paid. The seven men were charged with being present where gambling implements were found, the last six giving bond. The men were: Joseph White, John Costa, John Ponte, Frank Loues, Tony Costa and Joaquin Perceles. Following the receipt of a complaint headquarters last night a squad of police, composed of Sgt. Winn and Patrolman Cooney and Moore, of the liquor and vice squads, were dispatched to the address where the gambling activities were alleged to have been going on with instructions to raid the premises.

The seven men were surprised by the police as they were sitting around a table playing cards. They were placed under arrest while a search of the cellar of the house followed owing to complaints. Sgt. Winn stated, received by him that considerable "runkness" had been evident at this house. The officers raided the cellar, but they found no liquor although there were many empty jugs and bottles in the basement. The police told the court that these premises had been raided for the same purpose about a month ago when about a dozen men were arrested for alleged card gambling and later convicted in court. The court recalled with the police that the promoter of the gambling activities, when surprised by the raiding party on that occasion sneaked to a bed, took his clothes and pretended to be asleep, resisting arrest. The members of the liquor and vice squad testified he was the same person and Duarte, who asked by the judge admitted the same story.

WILL SPEAK ON HIS EXPERIENCES IN FRANCE

Rev. J. A. Fortier, O.M.I., of St. Joseph's parish, former chaplain of the Canadian army in France, will address the members of Lowell's American Legion, at its regular meeting next Monday night. The reverend gentleman will speak on his experiences in France.

Rev. Fr. Fortier was among the first to voluntarily enlist in the Canadian army and shortly after his landing on French soil, he was made chaplain general of the entire Canadian forces on the battlefield. His heroic deeds on the battlefield have won him several distinctions. He is an able speaker and will be remembered by many as having delivered the sermon at the open air mass on the grounds of the French-American orphanage in Pawtucket street, on the occasion of the return home to the French-speaking soldiers of this city, Labor day, 1918. Fr. Fortier is scheduled to speak at 8.30 o'clock, Monday night.

SPECIAL COURSE IN NATURALIZATION

Acting under a special request of a group of French-speaking women of this city the naturalization committee will open a special course of naturalization for the members of the fair sex. For some time past this committee has been conducting courses for the men folk with very satisfactory results and it is believed that similar courses for women would be of great value.

Women, married or single, who are planning to become citizens of this country and who would be interested in such a project are invited to attend a meeting, which will be held in the college hall in Merrimack street tomorrow afternoon at 2.30 o'clock. Members of the committee will be in attendance to explain the workings of the course they have in mind for the women, and it is hoped there will be a large attendance.

TREES WERE BADLY
BRUISED BY STORM

Superintendent of Parks John W. Kernan has notified the board of park commissioners that the damage to the city trees in a proper and safe condition, as a result of the disastrous storm of November 25 of last year, will cost approximately $30,000.

At the direction of his board, Supt. Kernan has spent the greater part of the last month in making a survey of the street trees and the shade trees in city parks, and from his observations, thus apparently have maintained the most damage. Maples and oaks suffered only a little loss, but the elms, but the evergreens, with the exception of the pines, were not so badly hit by the ravages of the storm.

The superintendent's itemized report shows that 100 tree butts need to be removed at a cost of $3800. Eighty trees, mutilated beyond repair, must be removed at a cost of $3500, while 1320 trees in need of surgery will necessitate an expenditure of $15,000.

Work to be done in parks will cost $1700 more, the superintendent declares, divided as follows: Fort Hill, $2000; Shedd park, $1000; South common, $800; North common, $500; Vernon avenue river bank to Dunbar avenue, $800; Tyler park, $400; Belvidere park, $200; Mt. Vernon park, $200.

ALL LINES ARE REPORTED OPEN

Supt. C. E. Whelan of the Eastern Massachusetts street railway reported this morning that all lines were once more open after the recent storm. For two days and nights Mr. Whelan had almost without respite an effort to get the lines cleared and in working order.

With the snow on the ground the company experiences no little trouble in delays from automobile trucks which use the car tracks to travel on, in places where the snow is so deep that the cars cannot pass. Yesterday the Lawrence line was tied up for nearly two hours by a double auto truck accident which occurred near the First street car barns.

About a o'clock in the afternoon word was received at the main office in Prescott street that a load of furniture en route to Lawrence, had tipped over in the car tracks. Simultaneously it was reported a heavy truck had become stuck in the tracks a short distance away from the furniture load.

It was impossible to do much with either truck, so transfers had to be made from one car to another. The car from Lawrence came as far as the wreck on the Lawrence end, while the car from Lowell went as far as the wreck on the Lowell side. The wrecking car proved of little value in clearing up the trouble. Finally the high powered wrecking auto owned by the Belvidere Garage company was sent to the scene and made short work of clearing away both wrecks. The furniture was loaded on a truck owned by the Arnold Green company of Boston going from Lowell to Lawrence while the other truck was owned by the M. J. Doyle company of Lawrence, also going from Lowell to Lawrence.

JUDGE MURRAY WILL SPEAK HERE SUNDAY

At the monthly meeting of the League of Catholic Women to be held in Associate hall tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock, a splendid program which will compare favorably with those offered at previous meetings this winter, will be presented for the entertainment of the members.

An excellent musical program has been arranged for the mandolin club by its director, Mr. Joseph A. Handley. This organization is splendidly equipped for entertainment purposes through the talent received from Mr. Handley, and takes an important part in all the league activities. Vocal selections have also been planned, in which one of Lowell's leading singers will be especially prominent.

The league meetings have been so well attended this season that a complete list of names is looked for tomorrow and the seating arrangements have been made for by the officers to the end that all may enjoy the program comfortably.

for in the old country. It is said, the observance of New Year's is similar to that of the observance of the Fourth of July in this country. Salutes are fired on parks and public squares, the bells toll and everyone joins in the celebration in which the church, the state and the people at large take an active part.

The celebration in this city today consists mainly of family gatherings and gatherings in the coffee houses. Greetings are in order and in some cases gifts are exchanged. A feature of the day is the family dinner, the piece de resistance of which is a large meat pie made of pork or beef. A silver or gold coin is placed inside the pie and when dinner is served the pie is cut in equal portions and each member of the family is given a piece, and according to tradition the lucky finder of the coin is to be blessed with happiness and prosperity during the entire year.

Following a custom established in Greece centuries ago, a group of young boys and girls went through the district last evening and stopped at every business place of the colony and sang hymns, the favorite being the hymn of St. Vasilios, the Greek patron saint. The singers were accompanied by the two charming daughters of Peter Sarris, the well known furniture dealer, who furnished music on mandolins. In each place they were well received and were also given contributions, which will go toward swelling the parochial school fund. It was stated this morning that the children collected several hundred dollars, for the business men of the district were very liberal.

Taking occasion of the Greek New Year, the Western Union Telegraph Co. had special telegram blanks printed and passed through the district this forenoon by Arthur Dupont, a special messenger. These blanks have decorations appropriate to the occasion. Many of the business men took occasion to use these blanks to send New Year's greetings to out-of-town friends and relatives. Numerous cables were sent to Greece bearing happy messages.

This morning at 10 o'clock a special service was held in the church in Jefferson street with Rev. Fr. Menides and Rev. Fr. Souleides as the officiating clergymen. The service was largely attended. This evening the observance of the day will be brought to a close with family reunions and gatherings in the coffee houses.

The most popular greetings used in the colony today by both adults and children are as follows:
Ετιχες το Νέο Έτος—Happy New Year.
Εκαριστε Επαιες—Thank you—Wish you the same.

VIRTUAL COMPLETION OF NAVAL TREATY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—(By the Associated Press)—Virtual completion of the naval treaty found the arms delegates today concentrating attention more and more on the problems yet to be disposed of in the far eastern negotiations with settlement of the Shantung issue now viewed in many quarters as almost indispensable to the readjustment program undertaken there.

Consequently, that problem not only apparently had been given the right of way, with another meeting of the Japanese and Chinese delegates the only item on the conference program today but was expected henceforth to be the subject of the active interest of all of the governments represented here in the effort to bring it to a final solution. It was the general view among the delegates that this would materially facilitate disposition of all remaining issues when the far eastern discussions were resumed.

Agreement having been reached by the "Big Five" regarding the disposition of prescribed warships, there remained to be settled today in completing the naval treaty only a few relatively unimportant details and the status quo arrangement regarding Pacific fortifications, the latter awaiting a reply expected hourly from Tokyo. The completed treaty was expected to be ready for an executive session of the full naval committee early next week.

RITZIE SCHEFF SAYS THAT LACK OF INFANT EARL FIGHTS IN COURT TO REGAIN $3,000,000 ESTATE WORRY KEEPS HER FIT

RITZIE SCHEFF

The Sun asked several of the country's leading beauties how they keep youthful. Following is what Ritzie Scheff gave as her recipe for beauty. She will tell their beauty secrets stories to follow.

BY RITZIE SCHEFF
Keith Vandeville Prima Donna
Don't worry!

Women could only realize the delicate quality of worry. They did teach their daughters early in to accept circumstances, try to get them if they wish, but not to fuss over things.

Have seen beautiful faces of enviously young women ruined by a young fretting attitude toward life. The other hand I've seen women stay along in years with the skin of a girl just because they learned to have a philosophical view of things.

Through my whole career I have to my "don't worry" theory—that is what has kept me fit.

Smother Needed
Cosmetics one must have. But they should be thoroughly washed off overnight and the skin given a chance to breathe. The best method of removing cosmetics, as well as the soil of the day, is to cream the face well first.

Slather the cream over the skin very generously and then wipe it off with a soft and very clean towel. It may be necessary to use a second coating of cream if all of the traces of cosmetics have not been removed.

Then the water! Nothing quite like soap and water for a healthy, youthful skin! Possibly it won't be necessary to use soap with the water bath after the cream wash—that all depends upon the condition of the skin—but the last rinsing should be with cold water.

Clothing Plays Part
I have no patience with clothing which conceals the lines of the figure. No woman can be truly beautiful in a frock or gown which is nothing more than an indistinct mass of material with no lines, no accent, no tone value.

If I wear something with the loose line prevalent just now it is invariably transparent with a pretty foundation built on good distinct lines.

BY MILDRED PRONNER

LONDON, Jan. 11.—Mrs. Eleanor White Hughes Brownlee, whose spectacular gains on British race tracks have made her name well known in society here, will be the central figure in the most spectacular will contest of recent years.

The contest involves the $3,000,000 estate of the late Earl of Shrewsbury, the bulk of which was left to Mrs. Brownlee. The contestant is the infant Earl of Shrewsbury. Mrs. Brownlee came to England from the Argentine. She began immediately to make large sums by clever race track plays.

Her most spectacular success was the purchase of a horse called Stomacher. The horse was lame. Her friends ridiculed the purchase.

But Stomacher's business headed and he won his mistress $25,000. Mrs. Brownlee's fondness for horse racing led to her acquaintance with the Earl of Shrewsbury. When the earl died he left her his whole estate save a few small bequests.

The infant earl, in his contest, declares the old earl was incapable of managing his affairs and that Mrs. Brownlee took advantage of his mental state.

Mrs. Brownlee denies all this. Meanwhile the executor of the will is pressing to have it probated.

A HAT THAT ADDS HEIGHT

BY MARIAN HALE
NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—There is, just now, tremendous bent for the wearing of plumage standing upright at the front of the hat.

And the fancy is quite all right for the woman whose face is full enough to take lengthening effects.

It is a welcome novelty for the short woman.

This black velvet hat emphasizes the effect of the upright ornament by employing the narrow back and front trim, widening at the sides.

MRS. KATHERINE A. RAUSER, HER DOLL CLOTHES FACTORY AND ONE OF THE SHOW CASES

By N.E.A. Service.
CHICAGO, Jan. 14.—When a business woman's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of—doll clothes!

What then? Fortune and success—in the case of Mrs. Katherine A. Rauser, head of a $100,000 corporation.

Employs 100 Women
Sixteen years ago she was a clerk in a department store. Today the business which she conceived out of the air creates of her dreams—an industry devoted to the manufacture of detachable doll clothing—brings in a handsome income and gives employment to 100 other women.

Mrs. Rauser's factory is really a dressmaking establishment of the highest order, where doll costumes receive as much attention as do those for women of the most particular dress tastes.

She started operations with one sewing machine. At that time there were no dolls on the market with removable clothing. It was a slow process to educate the world to accept artistic and expensive creations in doll raiment. But time and patience turned the trick.

New Styles Each Year
Each year, now, brings a new style in doll clothing. Everything from ballroom frocks to bathing suits.

The Rauser factory covers 10,000 square feet of space and has eleven show rooms. Orders come from all corners of the globe.

Mrs. Rauser says it is all the result of her dreams. "This is the ace of feminine achievement," she says. "Women are coming into their own at last. They have confidence for success never before realized."

NEW SPRING HATS ARE GAY "GARDENS"

BY MARIAN HALE
NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Such a wealth of flowers and fruit and foliage as her spring hat must wear!

There's little of the sombre about the headwear being shown in smart shops. Verily, the chapeau one sees, already venturing the cold winds, are gardens, gaily colored and wondrously beautiful.

A great colorful cluster—rich in tone and wide frills and flowers—buds the crown of this Punch hat and extends in a graceful vine to the edge of the wide brim.

A lovely purple pansy may be the central note of a bunch of bright small fruits. Deep pink and tan roses are poised among velvety peaches and their waxy foliage.

Color, lots of it everywhere seems to be the beautiful objective of the designers in their efforts on early hats.

gingham curtains was Mrs. Stone's stepping stone to success.

Her first job was to fill a high-priced apartment building at a time when everyone was lambasting landlords.

She immediately filled up a model furnished apartment in the building. She had the kitchen painted white and put checked gingham curtains at the windows.

"It was the psychology to take women tenants into bare apartments," she said.

Husbands Sighed
"What perfectly darling curtains!" exclaimed all the women who visited the apartment. Mrs. Stone offered to provide similar ones to renters. By-every woman's husband sighed on the dotted line.

Now landlords importune Mrs. Stone to rent their apartments for them.

A SPRING HAT IN TAFFETA

BY MARIAN HALE
NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Very small and very bright as to color are the spring hats shown for spring.

Brilliant things they are—with usually, a bit of embroidery, a coquettish pom-pom, saucy tassel or an or-ament thrust through the crown on one side.

Take this Punch hat, silken headwear very often takes the form of a ham-banquet. The one shown is of light green, embroidered in black silk thread, shot with silver.

CEREAL DISHES

Left-over cereal may always be used up in a made dish. If a large amount is left, it may be molded and fried and served for luncheon, or a smaller amount can be used in a pudding.

A cereal pudding has much food value and should follow a light meal. It is the dessert count as so many necessary calories of food rather than just so much more that could not be eaten if it were not sweet and specially attractive.

CEREAL LUNCHEON LOAF
One and one-half cups hominy, rice, 1/2 cup finely chopped peanuts,

1/2 cup coarse state bread crumbs, 1 tablespoon catsup, 1 tablespoon minced onion, 2 tablespoons minced celery, 1 egg, 1/2 teaspoon salt.

Beat egg and bread crumbs, mix, catsup and onion and salt. Reheat cereal and when very hot, stir in the first mixture. Pour into a buttered baking dish and bake half an hour in a hot oven. Serve with tomato sauce.

WHEAT PUDDING
Use any left-over wheat cereal, although the more slightly parched brands make a more delicate pudding.

Three-fourths cup left-over boiled cereal, 1/2 cup milk, 1 egg, 1/2 cup raisins, 1/2 cup sugar, 2-3 cup sugar, 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon, 1/2 teaspoon vanilla, 1/2 teaspoon lemon juice.

Beat milk and cereal until perfectly smooth. Add yolk of egg well beaten, sugar, butter and cinnamon. Pour into a buttered baking dish and bake 45 minutes in a slow oven. Cover with meringue made with white of egg beaten till stiff and dry with 1 tablespoon cold water. Then beat in 2 tablespoons sugar, vanilla and lemon juice. Brown in a hot oven. Let the meringue brown in ten minutes. Serve this pudding warm or cold.

HOMINY PUDDING
One cup cooked hominy, 1 tablespoon butter, 2 cups milk, 2 eggs, 1/2 cup maple syrup, 1/2 cup

A FRIEND IN NEED A FRIEND INDEED

Writes Mrs. Hardee Regarding Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Los Angeles, Calif.—"I must tell you that I am a true friend to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have taken it off and on for twenty years and it has helped me change from a delicate girl to a stout, healthy woman.

When I was married I was sick all the time until I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was in bed much of my time with pains and had to have the doctor every month. One day I found a little book in my yard in Guthrie, Oklahoma, and I read it through and got the medicine—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—and took eight bottles and used the Sanative Wash. I at once began to get stronger. I have got many women to take it just by telling them what it has done for me. I have a young sister whom it has helped in the same way it helped me. I want you to know that I am a 'friend indeed,' for you were a 'friend indeed' to me."

extends quite up to the chin and ears. When there are collars at all, this season, they are very high!

A slight accenting of the neckline is a notable feature of new gowns for day wear.

As in this one, the accenting is done with the cut of the garment, not so often with belt or sash effects. There is even a hint of the basque, which extends, for fitting, down over the skirt.

Pleated skirts are much used for street wear.

We are not among those who expect to see prolonged discussion between the contending parties under the new government of Ireland. We feel that the issues will be submitted to the people and there finally settled in accordance with majority rule. We do not believe that Mr. de Valera will play the part of a wrecker because he was unable to get the kind of settlement he wanted. It is possible that had the negotiations been longer continued, the Irish people might have secured a little better bargain, and it is equally possible that they might not. The assumption of Mr. de Valera is that they could have compelled England to recognize the republic or a form of government equally good. Perhaps they could have done so by renewing the warfare and perhaps not.

The whole question at the present time seems to be the acceptance of a substantial certainty or its rejection for a very splendid ideal which will undoubtedly be cherished by the Irish people until finally realized. But its realization at present does not seem either probable or possible in view of existing conditions.

That is why we believe the Irish people should unite in making the most of their opportunity to build up a united Ireland to develop the industrial resources of their country, to keep their people at home and increase the population to something like what it was before the famine of 1847.

Already we know of great numbers of Irish immigrants in this country who have expressed the intention of returning to Ireland after the government of the Irish Free State shall have been put in operation. Many Irish-American capitalists who are engaged in various lines of manufacturing industry here, will also go over there and establish new industries which will help to provide opportunities of earning a livelihood for the young people and, therefore, to make it desirable for them to remain in their own country and help to make Ireland a prosperous and contented nation.

Before the Irish people can obtain the full confidence and respect of the world, they will have to unite and prove that they are not the turbulent, disorderly, shiftless, criminal and vicious race of people that they have been represented to be by volumes of British propaganda sent all over the world during the past ten years. They have been represented in some of this propaganda as little better than savages, and this at a time when the Irish and Tans were ravaging the land and spreading a reign of terror wherever they went.

The Irish people must so conduct their new government as to give the lie to these calumnies and prove that, despite all assertions to the contrary, they are capable of governing themselves much better than ever they were governed by England. This cannot be done if a minority sets out to fight the recognized majority placed in power by a vote of the people. If the new Irish Free State attains prosperity with peace and order, it can then turn to the ideals advocated by Mr. de Valera with more hope of success than if it were still under the heel of Dublin castle. It is a proud day for Ireland when the military forces of Great Britain are withdrawn and Dublin castle is turned over for the use of the Irish administration. If the Irish leaders in their new parliament show even a fraction of the suavity, unity and patriotism displayed in their two years of warfare against England, they will win the admiration of the world and in no other way can they more effectively advance the ideals of Ireland's complete independence.

AS TO RECOGNIZING RUSSIA

There is much discussion at the present time as to whether the United States should recognize the government of Soviet Russia. The fact that Russia has been invited to enter the economic conference at Geneva brings up again her diplomatic standing among the other nations. The supreme council of the allies in this recognizing Russia, laid down certain conditions under which alone her representatives would be admitted to the council. These impose upon her the assumption of responsibility for adherence to any policies to which she may be a party and for the discharge of her national obligations to other powers. Evidently she would not have been invited, but for the fact that Russia is regarded as a vital element in the present economic crisis and that a general policy for the rehabilitation of Europe could be made effective without the co-operation of Russia.

Secretary of State Hughes in discussing the status of Russia on March 25, 1921, said:

"If fundamental changes are contemplated, involving due regard for the protection of persons and property, and the establishment of conditions essential to the maintenance of commerce, this government will be glad to have convincing evidence of the consummation of such changes, and until this evidence is supplied this government is unable to perceive that there is any proper basis for considering trade relations."

It appears that no such convincing evidence has yet been forthcoming except in the promises of the Lenin and Trotsky regime which Secretary Hughes does not accept as reliable. Possibly the participation of Russia in the Geneva conference will bring the Soviet leaders to adopt a line of policy that will be acceptable to the allied powers represented in the conference and will, therefore, offer additional reasons as to why the Soviet regime should receive diplomatic recognition.

As yet the United States has not decided the question as to whether we shall enter the Geneva conference and even should we take part in the work of the conference, that is not likely to change the relations between this government and Russia. Nevertheless, there is a growing agitation in favor of recognizing the Russian government on the ground that the people have the undisputed right of selecting their own form of government and that it is none of our business what that form is, provided it meets its obligations to the other governments of the world. In that there is a principle of democratic doctrine, but there is another consideration to offset this which is that the government shall represent the people and have organized control over the territory it is supposed to rule.

The New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad has made an interesting compilation of the actual risks in modern railroad travel. During the year 1920, the railroads of the country carried about 1,300,000,000 passengers, of whom one person was killed for every group of 5,673,000, while in a total of 172,000,000 carried in 1889 the death rate was one to every 1,623,000, which means that the danger of fatal accidents on the railroads in 1920 was less than one-third of what it was in 1889. This has been due mainly to the safety first campaigns, although in that time several new safety devices have been introduced and the removal of grade crossings has prevented many fatalities. Here in our own city, as many as half a dozen grade crossings have been removed in recent years, the most dangerous of them having been at School street, Walker street, Main street and Pawtucket street. Several such crossings were also abolished when the Boston and Maine cars ceased running into the old depot.

The old Middlesex street crossing still remains, although for thirty years its abolition has been agitated by the city government. The old board of trade at one time had plans all prepared for the change, with a long list of property damages on Middlesex street; but apparently the expense staggered the railroad company and the work has been put off from time to time on the plea of economy.

Fatal accidents were quite frequent at the grade crossings mentioned and we assume that the same is true of other cities, so that this increased safety in practically all the large cities of the country contributes much to the very satisfactory showing set forth by the statisticians of the New Haven road.

The railroads and the public are alike the gainers by this progress in the direction of absolute safety in railroad travel—a goal that can never be fully attained.

FOR NEW STATE PRISON

The present legislature will have an opportunity to pass upon a bill providing for the erection of a new state prison to take the place of the present makeshift one at Charlestown, which should long ago have been condemned even on the ground of unsanitary conditions.

In the last annual report of the commissioner of correction, the state prison is described as follows:

"The present structure was built in 1805. It is antiquated, out of date and hard to keep clean. It is in a congested and dirty location. There are no adequate hospital facilities. There is no segregated dining-room, with the result that men are obliged to eat all their meals in their cells. This is unhygienic, wasteful of food and conducive to unclean conditions. The absence from the cells of any kind of plumbing makes necessary the obnoxious and unhealthy 'bucket system,' and in general the cell block construction is not conducive to health."

We feel that it is almost an insult to our readers to print that description; but there are the facts and we feel that public sentiment should be aroused so as to get behind the demand for a new and up-to-date building.

THE NEWBERRY DECISION

It was expected, of course, that the republicans would seat Newberry, the republican member, who for a considerable time since he took office constituted the sole majority in the upper branch of congress. It was not denied that about $200,000 was spent to secure his election and the defeat of Henry Ford, his opponent; but Newberry testified before the senate that this was done without his knowledge or consent. This flagrant and high-handed purchase of a seat in the senate is another blot upon the record of the republican party and a blow to the principle of representative government. Newberry was opposed by the solid democratic membership and nine members of his own party. Their names should be remembered, as they regard honorable service and observance of law as of higher importance than the retention of a senatorial seat which was secured by the notoriously corrupt use of money. These senators are: Durah, Capper, Jones of Washington, Kenyon, Ladd, La Follette, Norbeck, Norris and Sutherland.

GOLD AND MONEY

Only $19,000,000 worth of gold was mined in America last year. That is a small fraction of the income of the American people.

Henry Ford wants to base money on the products of human energy, instead of gold. A banknote would be a mortgage on so many hours of work instead of a handful of gold.

America each year produces, by human labor, a total value five times as big as all the gold in the world. Which would be the better security? There was a time when the precious metals used as money were actually exchanged from hand to hand in the largest business transactions. That was before paper money was issued to be used instead of the metal coins. The time may come when our money may be based on a medium fully as reliable as gold; but not so concentrated. The chief danger in such a venture would be inflation to be followed by the reverse process of deflation, a reality with which the people of this nation have had a bitter experience following several money panics and two wars.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES

Interest on long-time loans in New York City drops to 4 1/2 per cent, which is the lowest rate since August, 1917.

This is important to borrowers. It is more important to the average citizen, not in the market for loans.

Cheap money—low interest—always is a forerunner of good times.

There are some other, signs of coming prosperity. One of these is, that fire losses are dropping. Credit men say that this is a sure sign of easier money conditions and that fewer business men are burning their properties to collect insurance for meeting their bills. Fire losses during December of last year amounted to $27,256,500, as against $41,197,600 in December of 1920.

GOOD SUGGESTION

Mayor Brown's suggestion that the municipal departments should have cheaper cars and all of the same kind is a good one; but, of course, it does not imply that the cars now in use should be sold out to make place for a new set. In line with this proposed reform, it might also be arranged that no department should have more than one chauffeur except where the auto is liable to be called out at any hour of the day or night.

Marquis Okuma, whose death in Tokio is now confirmed by official government dispatches, was a great admirer of the life of Thomas Jefferson. Perhaps after all, his genuine ideals for a modern and peaceful Japan came from a book of Jefferson's life which was given to him many years ago by William Jennings Bryan.

And some curious folks with a craving that are trying to find out the difference between ethyl and methyl alcohol, according to reports from the banned liquor haunts in New York. The experiment usually means death.

The demand for more subway exits is agitating the populace in old New York, but Lowell would be happy with one good waiting station in the vicinity of Merrimack square on nights like Wednesday.

Imports of luxuries during the past year fell off very appreciably as might be expected, the value for 1921 being $330,000,000 as against $525,000,000 in 1920. The people need actual necessities, not luxuries, under present conditions.

The new senator from Pennsylvania is regarded in his home town as "one of the salts of the earth." Well, if he is, the party needs him as a sort of antidote to the malodorous Newberry case.

Room For Plumbers

Prohibition as a boom for the plumbing business is apparent in Indianapolis, following the recent raids made by Federal Agents Hurlst and Harvey and C. C. Sheridan, assisted by members of the local police department. The only heating plant sent to plumbers as the result of the seizures being clogged with mud and corn husks put in appearance.

Gas Consumption

Not counting debate in congress, Americans used 219,840,000 cubic feet of artificial gas last year. This is an achievement, comparing it with a generation ago when mother had to wash the smoked chimneys of the kitchen oil lamps and trim their wicks. In about one more generation, the only heating plant sent to plumbers will be by electricity. A copper mine is a good legacy for grandchildren.

In the Rick Business

Representative Kreider of Pennsylvania was walking into the house of a building contractor yesterday when he saw a man in a long coat and hat, but to a suspicious mind it friend came along and saw the package. He said with a smile: "Ah—bootlegger!" "No," said Mr. Kreider, "bootmaker," he is. He is one of the big shoe manufacturers of the country—Washington Star.

Hard to Refuse

Two traveling men were driving in Maine to Strong from Farmington in an automobile last week. Part way up a steep drift in a snow drift, a man with his team hauled them out of the drift. "How much?" asked one of the men. "Gimme a dime," said the native. They gave him a quarter and drove off. Returning they got stuck in a snow drift and the same man hauled them out. One of them passed the man a half dollar. "You overpaid me 'cother time," said the native, passing back the coin. "And I don't want anything this time!"

Teatling Monashier

A Lowell doctor says the best way to test the strength of mounshine whiskey or even high-power, cellar-made wines is to soak a piece of raw beef-steak in them. The steak probably will taste like surface eaten off. That is certain proof that the wine also contains a "kick," also proof of what it does to inside of the human body. Wine, unless scientifically made, turns to vinegar, an acetic-acid compound. Get the cross between wine and vinegar and the wine is apt to contain acetone, which lacerates like sulphuric acid.

It's Coming to Him
An immigrant arrives in New York from Danzig. He traveled first-class because, as he explained, he was a "learned man." His wife, not being "learned," made the trip in the steerage. Can you imagine an American woman making a trip with her husband under such circumstances? After this Danzig wife has been in our country a few years and gets a good whiff of the American spirit of freedom and equality, friend husband is more apt to travel in the steerage and she first-cabin, in any vacation trip to the fatherland.

Not Strictly Enjoyable
"Nothing new to speak of," commented a resident of Straddle Ridge, Ark. "Everything went along well enough, though all a feller drewed a bottle of bone dry licker on me, out on the dark porch, just as I had my head thrown back, another feller came around the corner, ran into me and knocked the bottle from my hand. The licker spilled all over one of the dogs, and the poor verminnt gave a yell and jumped into the house through the open window and went to running around in circles. The women folks set up a screech that the dog was mad, and several of em fainted, and such as was right ashy and sober, had their hair burnt off'n his best dog. He couldn't make out whether it was the feller that brung the licker or me that dropped it. Or the feller that run against me and made me drop it. That was the time for the trouble and so he licked all three of us. No, someway I didn't have no great amount of fun."—Kansas City Star.

Not His Job
That fellow in one of the local mills who caught pneumonia because he would not close a window near the machine he worked on, saying, "It's not my job to close windows," reminds one of the little rhyme by the Longfellow-Ludington Co. of Philadelphia, Pa., issued 10 years ago. It runs something like this:

So he shut it by and leave it there. And the loss that gave him his weekly pay. Lost more than his wages on him that day.

"I'm not supposed to do that," he said. "That duty belongs to Jim or Fred." So a little task that was in his way. That he could have handled without delay. Was left unfinished; the way was paved. For a heavy loss that he could have saved.

And time went on and he kept his place. But he never altered his easy pace. And folks remarked on how well he did. The line of tasks he was hired to do. For never once was he known to turn his hand to things not of his concern.

But there in his foolish rut he stayed. And for all he did, he was fairly paid. But he never was worth a dollar.

Then he got for his toil when the week was o'er. For he knew too well when his work was through, that he was hired to do.

If you want to grow in this world, you must do every day all the work you can. If you find a task, though it's not your bit, And it should be done, take care of it. Or you'll never conquer or rise if you do only the things you're supposed to.

Incidentally the fellow who failed to close the window because it was another fellow's job had a solid oak casket with extension handles presented to him by grieving relatives.—Lawrence Telegram.

MAN ABOUT TOWN

The annual banquet of the Lowell Driving club, which comes along here many weeks, is expected to bring numerous out-of-town horsemen to this city, for the event is always held in conjunction with a good deal of interest. Brother Clark of Middlesex street tells me that a number of local horsemen are going down to the Bay State circuit banquet in Boston, too. The river races are not yet on the cards, but someone will place a friendly wager one of these days that others will want to grab, and then the fight will go up and Lowell folks interested in the free-for-all game may see something exciting. The races are usually run quarter-miles on the river stretch. The half is too long for good, speedy sport, and I am told that there can be held more and better contests between well-matched horses on a quarter mile track, and as for faster and longer races were run off. A lot of money is reported in sight for several local contestants, and Eunice O. may yet have to come out of her stable for something else beside a little daily workout along the snowpaths.

Speaking of the departure yesterday of officials of the chamber of commerce to Jaffrey, N. H., to attend the winter "polar meeting" of the executives of the chambers of commerce, Carl E. Shumway, former president of the Dartmouth Outing club, has been known to climb Mt. Washington on ice in midwinter, wearing only in his shirt-sleeves and running pants, with light shoes, of course. On one occasion he struck a 60-mile gale and with the temperature 30 degrees below zero, he was glad enough to have available cold-proof woolen clothing on his next jaunts to the mountain top. A friend of the chamber of commerce told me that several deer-dressed suits were packed to the "uppers" with good, warm woolen wear, useful for all kinds of mountain weather changes, and Jaffrey, N. H., ought to be a popular place from now on.

Sign on a Market street place, "Established 63 Years," reminds me of a story I heard out in Albany, N. Y., a few years ago. An old, tavern on Rensselaer (across the Hudson river from Albany) bore a large sign over the front door that read: "Established 186 years ago." Another hotel was erected in 1867 and bore a sign of the same kind. The old hotel, and this one, went up: "Established This Year—No Old Settlers in Dura." The old hotel, however, continued to do business and make money, too, for autists, old and young, travelling through Rensselaer preferred the food and lodging of the old-fashioned variety rather than the

Some people gain in strength and health every summer only to lose all they have gained when cold weather arrives. These people are inclined to thin blood. They are what doctors call anemic and are easy victims to winter colds, influenza and other weakening disorders that exposure to cold and dampness may produce. It is possible for such people to increase their resistance to disease and to build up their general health by bringing their blood up to normal.

"Last fall," says Mrs. James Miner, of No. 59 Hudson street, Providence, R. I., "I seemed to get into a run-down condition and was not well all winter. I was all tired out and had pains all over me. I was very nervous and did not sleep well. Indigestion troubled me and I had pains around my heart and in my chest. I was subject to severe headaches and dizzy spells, was weak and grouchy and did not feel like doing anything."

"Nothing helped me until I tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills which I read about in the paper. They made me feel much better in a short time. I took four boxes and now I feel gently in strength. I sleep well, have no more indigestion, headaches or dizziness and my nerves are much stronger. I have been unusually well since I took Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I am glad to recommend them."

A valuable booklet, "Building Up the Blood," will be sent free upon request. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price 50 cents per box, by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.—Adv.

new. Later, the new hostelry failed and was turned into a home for the poor. See!

Matt Bradford is one of the leading members of the Lowell Driving club's banquet committee, which is planning for the big event next month. Anything that Brother Matt has to do with always goes along successfully. I shall expect to see him on that handsome stallion out at Golden Cove again next summer.

The storage warehouse company that now occupies a large portion of the old Harvard brewery is doing a big business, I am told. The offices, of course, are about the best in the east for any such business, and while the name "Harvard" still shows here, there and everywhere on buildings, windows and advertising matter still lying around in some of the brewery quarters, the storage company is now on deck and several cars of goods a day are being shipped out of several and numerous cars come in regularly. The Man About Town hears, it is a splendid thing to note that a live organization is in charge of this valuable piece of property and is getting something out of it, for at one time its fate appeared to be settled when prohibition was enacted. The railroad track, facilities at the brewery plant are excellent.

When James S. Hanson passed away, the other day, the horsemen of Lowell and vicinity mourned to a man. I happened to be down around the stables on the afternoon of the funeral and noticed little groups of people standing around outside the barns, but no one could get in, for every thing had been locked tight since Mr. Hanson's death, and not a safe was made until after the day of the funeral. It was a sincere mourning, too, and all of the Hanson customers sympathized deeply with the relatives of the man who has passed on. As a mark of respect, a large and extremely beautiful funeral decoration and wreath with a large ribbon tied on the upper side was hung on the main door of the stables, and remained there until the deceased horseman was interred. That funeral home on the big barn was admired by thousands of men, women and children who pass the stables daily.

With a couple of more storms like that of Wednesday there would be a recurrence of the conditions that prevailed two years ago, when the snow was packed in a solid mass on the sidewalks as the result of several heavy falls on consecutive days. On the streets where the street railway ran, it will be remembered, there were miniature railways, the width of the tracks, and automobiles were practically useless, horse-drawn vehicles enjoying a brief return to popularity. Happily a few days of pleasant weather have intervened since Wednesday's storm, and the work of clearing the streets is being rapidly accomplished by the street department.

BIG MUSICAL REVUE BY THE Y. M. C. I.

The Annual Musical Revue of the Young Men's Catholic Institute is set for presentation next Tuesday evening, in Associate hall, at 10 o'clock. All indications it will surpass anything yet attempted in this line by the popular Belvidere organization. Stage settings, costumes, presentation and, in fact, everything connected with the musical revue will be new to the public, and will entitle it to be called "a musical triumph." The show has been prepared and cleverly assembled along original lines by the institute and the members of the Belvidere and their friends. Among the singers who will contribute to the program will be Miss Sadie Sheehan, Lowell's favorite contralto, Miss Theresa McCarron, a great Y.M.C.I. favorite, Miss Dorothy Nolan, a new-comer in Y.M.C.I. circles, but one who is bound to make a decided hit in the coming show; Miss Dorothy Conley, who presents dance specialties, Eddie Donahue, melodious tenor and Thomas Kelly, who played the leading male part in "Springtime" last fall. The ends comprise a sextet of funmakers and singers that is hard to

Berton Braley's Daily Poetry INTENTIONS

There's a lot of letters I ought to write
To friends I've seriously neglected;
I think my missives might bring delight
Perhaps the more if they're unexpected;
I ought to show that I still devote
Some time and thought to their joy or sorrow,
So I'll scribble each of my friends a note—
Tomorrow!

There's a lot of books that I ought to read,
Books on science and art and beauty,
And classic stuff that I really need,
Perusing which is a bounden duty.
I must start in on a reading course,
Buying what books I cannot borrow,
I'm gonna begin with vim and force—
Tomorrow!

There's a lot of calls that I ought to make
On several of my near-by neighbors;
And I ought to aid, for charity's sake,
The poor in all their weary labors.
I've never shared in my neighbor's grief
Nor worried about his joy or sorrow,
But I'm gonna turn over a brand new leaf—
Tomorrow!

There is a proverb I know full well
Which, more or less succinctly, mentions
That most of the pavements down in hell
Are builded largely of good intentions;
So I'd better put some of my notions through,
For there ain't much credit a guy can borrow,
Because of things he was gonna do—
Tomorrow!

Thomas B. Higgins, Esq., will close as an entertainer. A trained chorus of almost voices will be heard to advance throughout the greater part of program, and this chorus will be made up of about 60 attractive young ladies, who have entered into the spirit of the revue with great enthusiasm, assisted by members of the Y.M.C.I. The final rehearsal will be held tomorrow afternoon in the Institute Craven, last year's favorite, and who

WILL NOT ERECT MEMORIAL THIS YEAR

The project for the erection by the Pawtucketville Memorial association of a granite monument in memory of the boys of that section who served in the World War has received a temporary setback on account of the high price of material, and will probably not be erected this year. Although nearly $2600 is now on hand for the purpose of establishing this memorial, the officers of the association state that after investigation the amount is not half large enough at present prices. Many quarrymen have advised the postponement of the undertaking for the present.

The Boston Art commission, Messrs. Longfellow and McMillen, has stated its belief that all buildings contiguous to the property should be removed, another troublesome proposition for the association, for such action can be taken only by the park department of the city of Lowell. This recommendation is for the purpose of obtaining a more artistic background for the memorial, since the old farm factory on Riverside street is among the buildings in the background. The work of removing these buildings has not been done because of the exhaustion of the city government's appropriation.

The projected memorial is to be erected at the bridgehead on the westerly side of the Merrimack river. It is to be granite, with a facade sufficiently large to permit the names of all Pawtucketville residents who served in the great war to be engraved thereon. A space is to be provided at the bottom for the setting of a band, that band concerts may be given at the spot in the future.

Are You Running Down

and gradually losing your strength and vitality? Is your blood getting thin, and are you becoming nervous, and when you get up in the morning are you as tired as when you went to bed? These are symptoms of neurasthenia, and deranged stomach. The frequent causes of this condition are overwork and worry.

Deaths From Heart Disease Increase

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—The hustle and bustle of the metropolis is partly responsible for an increase in the number of deaths from heart disease, Health Commissioner Copeland said today. Ten keen an interest in the stock market is a contributing factor. Commenting on the fact that 12,006 persons died in New York of heart trouble last year, an increase of 664 over 1920—he said: "People run up subway stairs two steps at a time and are hurrying all day long. The means of transportation are so crowded a man stands up twice where he sits down once. In short, the New Yorker is nervous at repose. From the time he arises from his bed, until he goes to bed, he is on the go. He swallows his meals hastily and at night, after a long ride in the subway in the after-theatre jam, he goes home and has not had one minute rest during the day."

Demand for Bathtub Stoppers in Russia

MOSCOW, Jan. 14.—The enterprising merchant who provides a supply of bathtub and wash basin stoppers for Russia will be hailed enthusiastically by foreigners and natives alike, as these necessary articles have utterly disappeared. The inhabitants are using corks and wooden plugs wrapped with cloth. The most popular member of the American colony now in Moscow is a young woman who thoughtfully brought a supply of rubber stoppers from New York and distributed them among her friends as Christmas presents.

Embezzlement of State Funds Charged

PORTLAND, Me., Jan. 14.—Dr. William H. Lynch of this city, local veterinary surgeon, was charged with embezzlement of $2424 of state funds in his office while serving as state livestock sanitary commissioner, in one of the secret indictments reported yesterday by the superior court grand jury. Three counts were contained in the indictment, charging that he converted to his own use, $1208 on Oct. 9, 1920, $89 on Feb. 3, 1921, and $1127 on March 1, 1921. Bail for his appearance in court was given.

It was her Doctor's idea

MARY Josephine Murray gained only three-quarters of a pound the first three months she lived in this world. Then her doctor recommended Borden's Eagle Brand Milk. "She commenced to gain at once," Mrs. Murray reports, and six months later she had become a normal, healthy child. On her first birthday she weighed 23 lbs., 5 oz.

"Our doctor always speaks of her as a fine, healthy specimen of babyhood," writes Mary's mother. "She is such a good, happy baby and sleeps all night long."

Naturally, her doctor's sensible advice as well as her mother's care have contributed largely to Mary's wonderful health, even though her mother feels that she owes it all to Eagle Brand. But many thousands of other mothers have found Eagle Brand the best food for their babies. And a great many doctors recommend it—just as Mary's doctor did—in difficult feeding cases where the child was underweight or not gaining as it should.

A child's health is so largely dependent on its food, that no mother can afford to experiment. Nurse your baby, if you can, of course, but if for any reason mother's milk fails, don't risk foods of which you are not sure.

Borden's Eagle Brand Milk has been the standard for a great many years. For it is mother's milk—pure country milk combined with sugar. It is the natural food when mother's milk is not available.

Your grocer has Eagle Brand. You'll find it always pure and uniform.

JACKIE COOGAN AND THE CINEMATOPHONE. A NEW INVENTION WHICH COMBINES CANNED MUSIC AND MOVIES.

BY JAMES W. DEAN

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—An invention which combines a motion picture-projector and screen with a phonograph, promises a new form of entertainment for the home.

The cabinet of the cinematophone encloses a rear projector, automatic projector control and a fireproof container. A series of mirrors project the picture against silk screen 12 by 18 inches, which is revealed when the doors of the phonograph are opened. The machine is operated by electricity.

Only three of the machines have been constructed. Jackie Coogan, the seven-year-old star, was the first to be featured in a demonstration of the machine. "My Boy" was projected while a disc record played an accompaniment.

The invention is the work of A. L. Edmonson of Los Angeles. He calls it the cinematophone.

The most interesting experiment to be made with this machine, as this writer sees it, is a condensed film version of opera to be synchronized with phonograph records of the opera music.

You sit before the screen and watch the pictures flicker by, but do you ever wonder about the romance that lies in the making of the little celluloid strip that makes possible the projection of comedy and tragedy, history and romance before you?

A movie "film" (the word "film" is a two-syllable word now current) is made at Kodak Park, Rochester, N. Y. It also gives some idea of the extent of the film industry. Four million pounds of raw cotton are used yearly in the manufacture of films. It is first reduced to an emulsion by acids.

Three tons of pure silver solution are used each week to make the salt for the sensitive coating. The only establishment using more silver is the United States mint.

ANOTHER LAUGH

Producers have been criticized frequently because they change titles of films even though the film stories are not much changed from the printed version. In the case of "Star Dust" the title is retained and the story changed and the producer is criticized for that. The shoe is still on the same foot.

"MATIAS SANDOR"

A French film version of Jules Verne's "Matias Sandor" will soon be released in this country by Pathe. It has been running for several months at more than 100 theatres in Paris. It was produced by Louis Nalpas, who filmed "Monte Cristo."

WITH THE CAMERAMAN

Constance Hickey completes "The Sleep Walkers" in "Hungry Hearts" is played by Rose Resanova. Eight bulls are used in a bull fight scene in a new comedy featuring Bobby Vernon.

William Russell completes "Strength of the Pines." Irene Rich is leading lady.

Edward Hearn plays the lead opposite May McAvoy in "Through a Glass Window."

"Evil gain brings pain" is the moral of "The Bear and the Bees," the next Acson film.

Four Chaplin comedies are to be re-released by First National. They are "A Dog's Life," "Swanside," "Shoulder Arms" and "A Day's Pleasure."

Yes, here's another title change. "Judith of Blue Lake" (starring Pauline Frederick and Tim Santschi) has been changed to "Two Kings of Women."

ate this season and Manager Frankman to assure us that they will be kept secure.

"The Conquering Power" is a Rex Ingram production for Metro, and it is Mr. Ingram has the assistance of all the principals who acted in the making of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," the superb feature that it was. At its New York premiere, "The Conquering Power" was claimed with unqualified enthusiasm by some reviewers even asserting that it passed "The Four Horsemen."

The story is an adaptation of Balzac's famous novel, "Eugene Grandet." The scene is laid in a provincial city of France, where the miserly old Grandet hoards his gold and lives in poverty with his daughter Eugenie. A nephew, Charles, a young boulevardier from Paris, son of a bankrupt seigneur, is thrown upon the charity of the miser and is accordingly thrown out whipping to Martenango with little money but with the treasured memory of Eugenie's love. This is the beginning of a magnificent story of love and greed, and it would hardly be fair for us to tell you the rest of it and spoil the fun of seeing it for yourself.

In "The Invisible Fear" Miss Stewart is given a role particularly suited to her natural talents. The story embraces a plot of mystery, romance, and adventure, and all are blended into the tale, resulting in a highly entertaining story. Miss Stewart plays the part of Sylvia Lombard, who is a young and is accordingly thrown out whipping to Martenango with little money but with the treasured memory of Eugenie's love. This is the beginning of a magnificent story of love and greed, and it would hardly be fair for us to tell you the rest of it and spoil the fun of seeing it for yourself.

EAGLES CONVENTION
PICTURES AT STRAND

All local members of the Fraternal Order of Eagles will be interested in the pictures of the 121 national convention of the organization, held in

Newark, N. J. They are said to be the only pictures taken at the convention and are very interesting to the casual observer; so, naturally, they should command the attention of all members of the order. The films are being shown at the Strand theatre.

The pictures show the welcome received by the delegates on their arrival in Newark and the field day which was held, with military drills and other features. Probably the most interesting section of the film is that which shows the national officers, including many past worthy presidents, in characteristic speaking attitudes, with quotations from their addresses thrown on the screen. These quotations covered the most notable features and achievements of the order; its charitable work, its record in the late war and the number of gold stars on the national service flag. One of the officers uttered the slogan "1,000,000 members by 1925."

Previous to the main films, a short feature playlet was shown, demonstrating the benefits to be derived from membership in the order. The films will be shown at all performances today.

BOYD P. DOTY WILL LECTURE AT Y. M. C. A.

At the men's meeting in the Y.M.C.A. tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock Boyd P. Doty will deliver a lecture on "Sowing Dragon's Teeth." The meeting will be for men only. The speaker comes from Ohio and is prosecuting attorney for the New England division of the anti-saloon league of America.

Mr. Doty in an advance letter says

LOCATES LOST UNCLES

Mrs. Thomas Whaley Gratified for Assistance Rendered by The Sun

"All alive, well and prosperous!" This is the happy new year message just received by Mrs. Thomas Whaley of 113 Bellevue street from the great west, announcing that her long quest to locate four uncles—all brothers—reported as "missing" for 18 years, has been successful. It was a welcome message, indeed, for Mrs. Whaley who, sometime ago, appealed to The Sun and also a well known magazine for aid in her search.

Mrs. Whaley today gave The Sun credit for splendid assistance. The story of the "missing uncles," published several weeks ago in this newspaper, was copied far and wide. News agencies sent notices all over the country, and one magazine copied it and inserted the story in brief announcement form in a "missing persons" page.

Today Mrs. Whaley, her face actually shining with happiness as she stated that her uncles in the best of their health and comfort, and the producer of their comfortable home on Bellevue street, thanked The Sun for publishing the first accurate story of the case, and declared that the mystery that once troubled her is a mystery no longer.

And Mr. Whaley had a pretty fair New Year's gift on his side of the house, too. For it seems that the husband, who is one of the best leather workers in the country with many years of experience in handling all grades, has been informed that the position he used to hold down at the American Hide & Leather Co. plant in Perry street, is waiting for him again next Monday morning when the whole thing is over.

One of the employees laid off sometime ago on account of a temporary shut down and refusal of workmen, said everything considered—not forgetting the fact that they are both Lowell boosters—always the Whaleys are starting 1922 in pretty good spirits in spite of the fact that coal hasn't taken a tumble and it's costing a lot to live.

When The Sun asked about the four long lost uncles began to circulate around the country, a magazine happened to find its way to No. 621 Market street, San Diego, Cal. Now that is some distance from the Springfield, Mass. home of Mrs. Whaley, but a certain elderly man with a wide acquaintance among western plainsmen and Alaskan gold miners, happened to live there. Picking up the magazine one evening and glancing through the "Missing" column, his eyes struck a notice that told of the Lowell woman's quest.

The man was E. L. Mack, well known in both California and Alaskan gold fields, and a long time resident of the north territory. He ran across a man named Frank Cleary up there one time some years ago, who said he had relatives in Lowell. Mr. Mack wrote Mrs. Whaley of Bellevue street the following letter:

San Diego, Cal.
Mrs. T. Whaley,
113 Bellevue St., Lowell, Mass.
Dear Madam:—I noticed your query in "Missing Department" of the National issue of The Sun. I am glad to know of Frank Cleary in Alaska. The party in question was the man who discovered Cleary creek, in the Yukon territory. He is now in the territory that he will express himself forcefully on the prohibition question with particular reference to the work being attempted by Prohibition Enforcement Agent Harold D. Wilson of Boston. He will tell of the hardships under which this federal agent has to work.

TEXTILE COUNCIL ELECTS OFFICERS

There was a large attendance at the meeting of the Lowell Textile council which was held last evening in Trades & Labor hall, Central street. Considerable business was transacted, plans for tomorrow afternoon's meeting of representatives of councils of Lowell, Lawrence, Manchester, N. H., and Maynard, were perfected and the election of officers was held with the following result: John Hanley, president; Lewis Sheen, vice president; Frank McLaughlin, secretary-treasurer; Alfred Angles, recording secretary; A. Stanvico, sergeant-at-arms; Austin Kennedy, Mrs. Annie Odel and Walter McLaughlin, board of trustees.

Edward's long letter to his niece and his sister stated that he is interested in his big ranch now in Eskimo land. He will be warmly welcomed by his niece on Bellevue street, and then he plans to visit his sister in old New Hampshire.

Edward's last letter to his niece and his sister stated that he is interested in his big ranch now in Eskimo land. He will be warmly welcomed by his niece on Bellevue street, and then he plans to visit his sister in old New Hampshire.

Edward's two years at gold mining make him prefer ranching. He is acquainted with cowboys, but not of the Mustang Mixer and Galloping George types. Real cowboys, he means—the kind that do about as they please on every day in the year, also on pay day.

Fifty-Foot Lot Will Take Care Of This Roomy Western Home

There is plenty of sleeping space in this model home plan furnished by the Sun by the Curtis Service Bureau, of Clinton, Ia.

Every day spent in this western home should be a pleasant one, because it is so comfortable and convenient. It is good looking, too. Excellent proportions and an interesting combination of stucco and shingles give it architectural merit.

The extreme outside dimensions are 33 feet 10 inches by 29 feet 10 inches. A 50-foot lot is needed, either an inside or corner lot, with any frontage, for all the rooms are planned to get as much light and air.

In the living room, which is 35 by 31 feet, there is place for fun and frolic and the joy of companionship before an open fire. There are two pairs of casement sash toward the front, and the room also "borrows" light through glazed openings toward the rooms that adjoin it on the other three sides, so that it is unusually cheery.

Library Has Entrance
The library has a secluded location, and an outside entrance of its own. It is sure to be quiet for reading and study, and there is good light and plenty of wall space for the best possible location of book-cases, desk and davenport. At one end of the room two bookcases are built-in, and between them a window seat, under which are placed books, magazines and unlighted files can be kept.

No woman could resist the dining-room of this house. French doors open to it from the rear of the living room, shutting out the sounds and smells of the dinner being served, but admitting light and a pleasant glimpse. The room is almost square, except for the bay window looking out toward the rear garden. Two adorable china closets, one on each side of the pantry door, balance a built-in buffet opposite.

Four Bedrooms
The pantry is useful in preventing cooking odors from penetrating to the dining room, and this one also furnishes access from kitchen to front door and main stair without intrusion into any other room. It is fitted with a sink with two drain boards beneath a pair of casements, and two kitchen dressers. The kitchen has smaller features, and also a built-in ironing board. Upstairs there are four excellent bedrooms, two baths and the sleeping porch.

The exterior view shows how skillfully the architects have made the sleeping porch a real part of the house, which only too often appears to be a sort of afterthought hitched on to our houses.

Sleeping Porch and Bath
The largest bedroom is an suite with the sleeping porch and bathroom. It is a room 12 feet by 20 feet, with fireplace, and two closets. The other bedrooms abound in closet space, too, and have a chest of open-end drawers, built-in.

that will more than replace a chiffonier; and another has a dressing table as part of one wall, with adjustable mirrors and a clever little bench to fit beneath it.

All but one of the bedrooms has windows on two sides, and are rooms of comfort, health and cheerfulness as well as of convenience and privacy.

Furniture for this house can be purchased from A. E. O'Hair & Co., in Hurst at on reasonable terms.—Adv.

LINES REPAIRED
The telephone company reports that all lines in Lowell and vicinity reported out of commission since the storm of November 29, have been fully repaired so far as known. Manager Charles J. Leathers states that there might be a connection or two in some districts that might not be working properly. If there are any such, subscribers should at once notify headquarters and the matter will be promptly attended to. No reports have come in of any lines not working now, and the company officials are breathing easier. The recent snowstorm failed to hit the service or do any damage to speak of. The wire service out in many country districts is now working well, and several places connected temporarily with "one wire" lines, are now fully equipped with regular service as before.

Special to The Sun.
WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 14.—The time of the senate this week has been entirely taken up with the Newberry election case, party ranks being split in both parties, the republicans finding it impossible to hold their forces in line to vote for the seating of the senator from Michigan. The seating of Newberry has caused confusion among the leaders who felt uncertain of the outcome until the vote was taken. Early in the week Senator Walsh of Massachusetts announced to your correspondent his intention of voting against the seating of Mr. Newberry. "We must down the excessive use of money in primary campaigns," said "and I cannot feel that the people of the country will feel that under existing circumstances Mr. Newberry is entitled to a seat in the senate." When questioned as to his attitude on the conference treaty as it will be submitted by President Harding at the close of the conference, Senator Walsh replied that he had determined his course of action and would not feel like making any statement until the treaty was actually before the senate in its final form.

Maternity Law Funds

There is considerable misunderstanding concerning the funds available under the so-called Maternity bill, many persons expecting to see states reap immediate benefit. As a matter of fact no appropriation bill for such expenditures has been passed by congress nor has one yet been submitted. The Maternity bill passed and with it the recommendation of the Interstate Commerce committee authorizing appropriations for the necessary funds was approved by congress, but that was merely an authorization for congress to make appropriations, if it saw fit. To secure the funds congress must pass a bill after it has been approved by the director of the budget, the president, and has been submitted to the committee on appropriation. All this must be done before any money is available. Congress can appropriate the sum as named in the bill or it can reduce the amount. It cannot increase it.

Miss Abbot, director of the Children's Bureau, which will be practically in charge of the matter, stated to your correspondent today that she had sent an estimate of the amount needed for state use, to the director of the budget and that he would take the matter up for consideration about Jan. 20th. Whether the money will be made available for the current fiscal year or not is another matter of doubt and one which rests with congress in regard to the appropriation. Under the terms of the bill Massachusetts will receive approximately $40,000, which must be practically matched up by state appropriations before it can become available. As the budget has already been put before congress it will be necessary to introduce a deficiency bill to meet the financial needs of the Maternity bill, whether it is cut down or gets the full amount authorized by the congress.

Congressman Rogers recently asked the attorney general to investigate the laws of Pennsylvania which enable that state to place a tax on the mining of anthracite coal, and has received a reply from the attorney general stating he would take up the matter with the attorney general of Pennsylvania. Mr. Rogers is convinced the state tax will add to the price of coal used by New England consumers and that such burden will fall most heavily on the small consumer and the householder.

Cape Cod Canal Purchase

When the Interstate Commerce

committee, of which Winslow of Massachusetts is chairman, this week gave a hearing to men advocating the purchase of the Cape Cod canal by the United States government, secretary of War Weeks, Secretary of the Navy Denby and Secretary of Commerce Hoover all testified in favor of the project, thus bringing together a notable group pleading for the turning over of the Massachusetts project. They agreed that it would be of inestimable value to the country for commercial, naval or military purposes and that if it were to be constructed under present price conditions the cost would be far and away above the price proposed for the purchase, which is $11,500,000. There will be opposition to a favorable committee report coming from southern and western members who are struggling to get money expended along the line of the Mississippi and other big rivers, and apparently want their work done first. It is hoped, however, that the Massachusetts project will win a favorable report by the committee whose New England members are Winslow, chairman, also Burroughs and Merritt.

Tilson Gets Democratic Dope

The first edition of the new Congressional Directory made the error of putting the name of Congressman John Q. Tilson in the democratic list, by using italics which designate members of that party. The error was quickly rectified but Tilson is now reaping the fruit of it just the same. Tilson, a staunch republican and member of the executive committee of the house republican congressional committee, is receiving much "inside" literature from the democratic committee headquarters. He is asked to use his influence to bring about a big democratic victory and the way to begin is quite plainly pointed out. Tilson is having considerable fun over it, and when the proper time comes it's a safe guess these "How to win" letters will be thrust in the face of some of Tilson's democratic colleagues in congress, with whom he is on the best of personal terms. Moreover, Tilson chuckles and says he is quite willing to take pointers from the democrats if they are worth anything.

White Pine Blister

Senator Keyes of New Hampshire has introduced a bill asking for an appropriation of $125,000 for use in the Eastern States for the extermination of the white pine blister rust, in addition to any other appropriations made for the purpose.

During the time between the death and burial of a senator it has been a custom to throw a heavy black pall over his chair in the senate. In deference to the well known desire of Senator Penrose for utmost simplicity, the custom was abolished after his death and a simple black ribbon laid across his desk.

The two young Coolidge boys spent the holidays here with the vice president and Mrs. Coolidge. They were frequent visitors to the senate where they sat in the vice president's pew in the gallery and "mother" pointed out the celebrities as they entered the chamber and also explained to them the workings of the senate.

Diseases Rampant in Russia

GENEVA, Jan. 14.—(By the Associated Press)—The Council of the League of Nations today received reports of its special health commission to Russia which declare that while there is not a single case of plague in European Russia, such diseases as typhus, malaria, dysentery and typhoid are rampant there. Four hundred thousand cases of typhus were reported officially in a single month and the disease was said to be spreading throughout Russia. The commission estimates that there have been more than 20,000,000 cases of typhus in Russia in the last three years.

Quarter Century Ago

At this time twenty five years ago there was a hot fight between the political parties over the new charter changes which gave the mayor the power to appoint all heads of departments. It happened that the city council in both branches had a republican majority and Mayor Courtney was a democrat. When he made his appointments, there was a fearful howl. One of the new officials was Richard Bray, who was appointed superintendent of the lands and buildings department to succeed Supt. Varnum. Here is part of what the old Sun said of Mr. Bray's assumption of his duties:

"Richard Bray is in charge of the lands and buildings department. This morning he went to the superintendent's office and informed Mr. Varnum that he would take charge of affairs in the department. Mr. Varnum refused to give up because he said there is some question about Mr. Bray's appointment. Mr. Bray stated that his appointment is all right. Then Supt. Bray instructed all the help to take orders from him and he also proceeded to make requisitions for supplies for the department. The affairs are now in a very complicated condition and the men in the department are at a loss to know from whom to take orders."

The following week Mr. Varnum was re-elected in consequence of which the city council and the legal fight was on. The republicans knew they could not win by an appeal to the courts, and hence they brought the matter to the legislature as indicated by the following item from The Sun of that week:

"Yesterday Rep. Edward Dobbins filed a bill to be introduced by which the legislature annulling any power of appointment conferred on the mayor by the terms of the recently amended charter and providing that the bill shall take effect upon its passage."

Good Skating

Quarter century ago there was good skating on the rivers and at Lakewood, whether the people went in large numbers as there was then no Shedd park. The old Sun says: "There was skating for the thousands Saturday and yesterday and the river, Lakewood, Mud Pond, Crystal Lake and Long Meadow were black with people, all kinds of skates being there from the old time rocker to the long reach Raymond, and all kinds of people from the man with a patch on his overalls to the new woman with her short skating skirt and dainty skating boots. Long Meadow was the only place not overcrowded because one was obliged to walk there. Lake Massapic attracted by far the largest crowd."

Highland Council, R. A.

Says the old Sun: "The members of the Highland Council, R. A., installed officers last evening at Highland hall and had a delightful social time in connection with the installation. The celebration possessed a double significance, for aside from the installation, the 300th member was initiated and there were present members from other councils to help celebrate. Seven candidates were initiated, bringing the membership to 303. Charles N. Woodward is the lucky 300th. The other new members were J. J. Bancroft, Jr., W. D. W. Martin, Charles H. Ward, Donald Cameron and Charles S. O'Keegan."

Mathews Out Strong

From the old Sun: "Fifteen hundred young people helped the Mathews celebrate their fifteenth anniversary last night. 'It was in Huntington hall, the host received his guests and the institute that has lived and prospered during this period must have felt happy in the praise bestowed. The anniversary is always a successful celebration. Last night its success knew no bounds. The march was led by Fred Director, Patrick P. Kelly and Miss Mammie Maguire, followed by Asst. General Manager John J. Gallagher and Miss Annie Dolmore; Assistant Floor Director John J. Pinder and Miss Annie Marshall, Chief Aid William A. Smith and Miss Minnie Conroy. Seventy-five couples joined in the grand march."

The Red Men

The following from the old Sun relative to the Red Men will recall a notable event in the history of the local tribe. The annual installation of chiefs and warriors of Passaconaway Tribe, Red Men, took place at a largely attended meeting last evening. The following officers were installed: Prophet, Charles H. Kittredge; sachem, Charles E. Smith; senior sagamore, L. F. Steele; junior sagamore, A. B. Hillard; C. of R. H. A. Bailey; G. of W. Martin; K. of W. E. T. Coward; sanga, E. G. Ryan; A. C. Richardson; G. of W. Hugh Fraser; G. of P. Milo Clifford; wanees, W. Hall; T. P. Silk; braves, A. W. Garhand, Charles C. Clough and C. D. Polard."

David J. Donaldson, the well known
